PEARL HARBOR, Feb. 4—

Tank-paced troops of the Army's Seventh division, covered by a sea and air barrage, drove across Kwajalein island against crumbling Jap resistance today as the battle for the Marshalls roared into its fifth day.

Some 70 miles to the north, Maj. Gen. Harry Schmidt's Fourth Marines were set to move from positions on Roi and newly-won Namur islands in a giant nutcracker attack that would place all of strategic Kwajalein atoll in American hands.

The Seventh, reinforced since its initial landing on Kwajalein, now holds more than half the two-mile long island. A terrific toll in dead was taken from the Jap garrison by the thunderous bombardment that preceded and accompanied fighting that followed the invasion.

Of the estimated 2,000 defenders, at least 1,250 have been slain at a cost of 27 American soldiers killed, 190 wounded and 9 missing—a ratio of more than 46 to 1.

Resistance Continues

"Resistance continues on Kwajalein island," said a grim communique from Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, "but we have landed troops and mechanized equipment in force and are proceeding with the annihilation of the enemy."

MRS. DILLING TO DENY PLOT FOR NAZI REGIME

CHICAGO, Feb. 4—Mrs. Elizabeth Dilling, lecturer and author of "The Red Network" was en route to Washington, D. C., today to plead not guilty next Monday on charges of plotting to set up a Nazi regime in the United States.

She was one of 30 indicted by a federal grand jury in Washington. Before leaving Chicago, she said: "I feel like I'm leaving for the lion's den, but only a bullet will stop me from fighting to bring out the truth. I haven't the slightest consciousness of guilt."

Her attorneys, Floyd Lanham of Chicago and Bellmore Lessard of Portland, Ore., said they would argue a demurrer attacking her indictment as "vague, insufficient and unprovable."

Nation Near Tax Limit, George Says

Senate Finance Committee Chief Thinks Only Chance Is To Tap New Sources

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4—Sen. Walter F. George (D) Ga., chairman of the senate finance committee, said today the nation has about reached the limit of taxation during the war unless it is ready to tap new sources of revenue.

With final congressional passage of a $2,315,800,000 tax measure—perhaps by Monday—the total federal, state and local tax bill, including amounts recovered by scaling down contracts, will reach approximately fifty-nine billion dollars, George said.

"I believe we have reached the limit for the duration of the war unless we are prepared to go to new sources of revenue or adopt new methods," said George. "I can think of three possible methods of increasing taxes."

"We can levy a sales tax and get a considerable amount of money if we make the rate high enough."

"We can apply the principle of the corporation excess profits tax to individuals, but in that event we would have to couple it with a postwar credit to avoid inequities."

"We can also raise money by compulsory savings. This would, of course, be returned later."

George, who joined with other senate finance committee leaders in rejecting the treasury's ten and a half billion dollar tax bill and Wendell L. Willkie's proposal for a 16 to 20 billion dollar bill, predicted the federal deficit also will be cut by economy.

The war department already has announced a savings of twenty-seven billion dollars in the army supply program.

"I think the next fiscal year will demonstrate that expenditures will not be as large as contemplated," George said. "I believe the size of the deficit can be cut by further economies."

With the national debt soaring toward the 300 billion dollar mark, George voiced confidence that the nation can sustain it.

"Our ability to serve and reduce the debt will depend primarily on the national income after the war," he said. "If during that period it can be kept at a high level, we can carry a larger debt than many conservative thinkers have heretofore fixed as the limit."

George declined to predict the maximum debt that can be carried, but emphasized that the nation must have prosperity in the postwar era.

SINATRA'S WIFE NOT JEALOUS OF SWOONING GIRLS

HASBROUCK HEIGHTS, N. J., Feb. 4—Mrs. Frank Sinatra celebrated her fifth wedding anniversary today, separated by the width of a continent from her young "swoon-crooner" husband, but laughing to scorn any idea that the hordes of feminine admirers constituted any menace to their marriage.

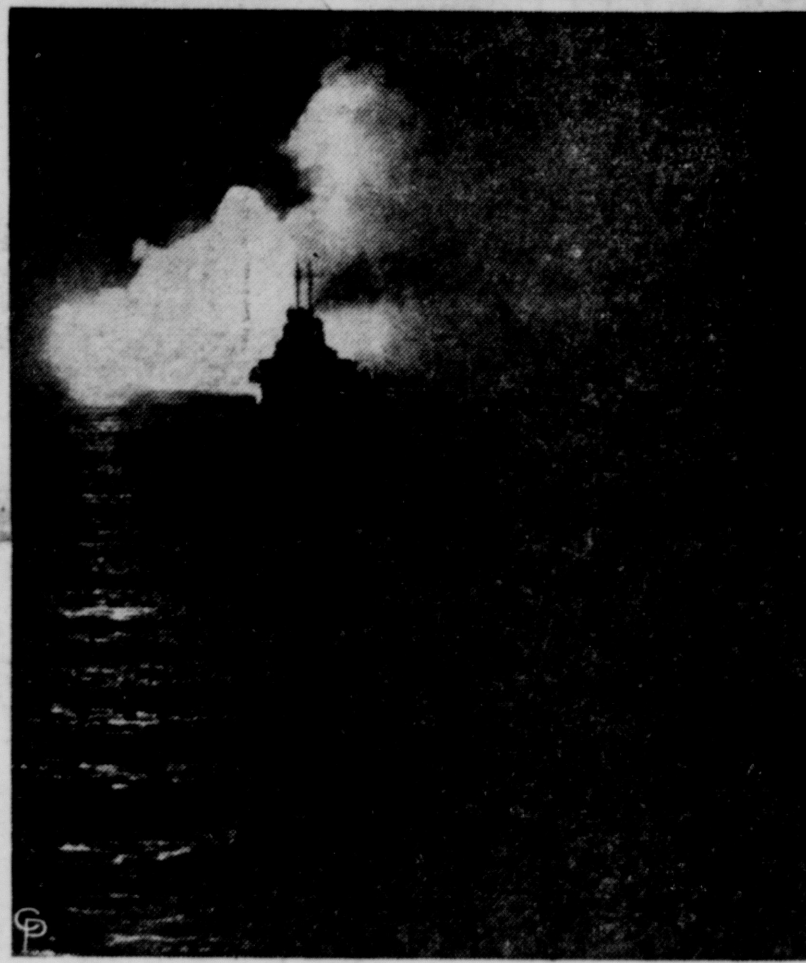

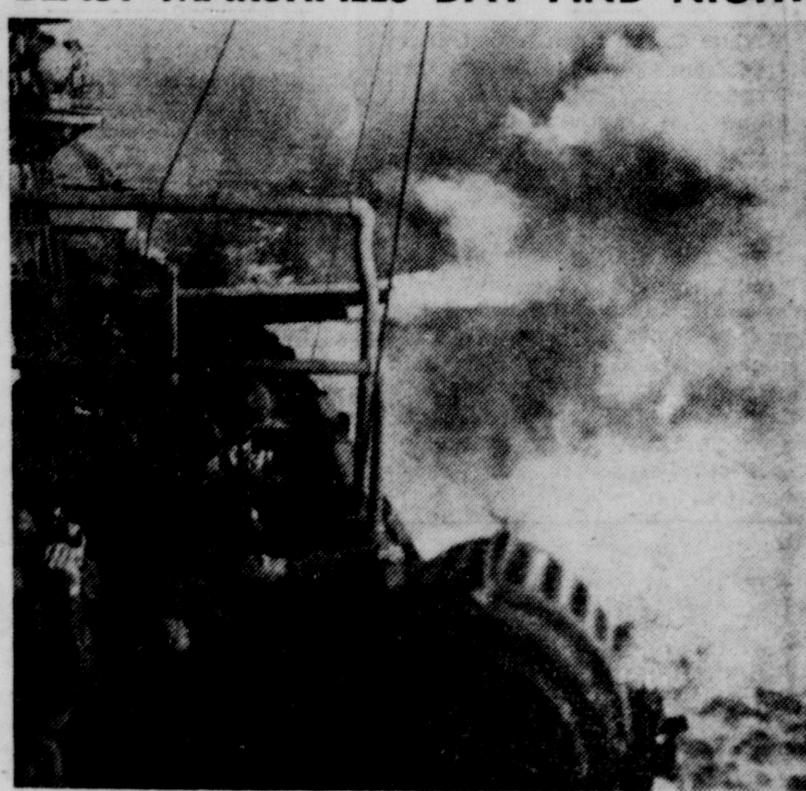

A petite, brown-eyed brunette of 24, Mrs. Sinatra—who was Miss Nancy Barbato of Jersey City, N. J., before she married the then unknown singer on February 4, 1939—spent the day quietly at their home in Hasbrouck Heights.

Busy with her household duties (she lives simply and has no maid) and with the care of their children, Nancy, Jr., age three and a half, and tiny, three-weeks-old Frank Jr., she explained that their temporary separation was due only to circumstances.

Far from being jealous of her husband's feminine fans, from the "bobby socks" brigade to palpitating matrons in mink, she stoutly defended them.

"They're sweet," she exclaimed. "It's not like a crush, the way you might think. They're just as crazy about me and the children as they are about him. For months before Frank, Jr., was born, we got presents for him."

U. S. Intensifies Effort To Patch Russo-Polish Dispute Over Boundary

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4—The United States government was intensifying its diplomatic efforts today to patch up the Russo-Polish boundary dispute as the Soviet armies made sweeping gains well inside the old borders of Poland.

Despite Moscow's recent rejection of the American offer to help initiate a resumption of relations between the Soviet and Polish governments, active diplomatic discussions are underway concerning the problem.

The American government's immediate objective is to persuade Russia to refrain from setting up a puppet regime in Poland.

It is being made clear to Moscow that any such move would constitute a serious blow to the principles of the Moscow pact. It also is being pointed out that the Nazi propaganda machine would seize on such a development as evidence of its contention that the choice in Europe is between German national socialism and bolshevism.

The diplomatic discussions are underway in Moscow as well as in (Continued on Page Three)

CO-CHAIRMEN CHOSEN FOR RED CROSS CAMPAIGN

Pickaway county Red Cross will open its 1944 War Fund campaign for $24,300 on March 1 with Harley Colwell and Barton Deming serving as co-chairmen.

The two co-chairmen will set up their own organization.

Carl C. Leist, chapter chairman who announced appointment of Mr. Colwell and Mr. Deming, said the campaign is the most important the chapter has undertaken in many years.

The county's 1942 War Fund goal was $8,500, and in 1943 the county contributed $16,800 to the national Red Cross fund.

SOLDIER TELLS BLOOD AND GUTS HE BOTHERS HIM

NEW YORK, Feb. 4—Tech. Sgt. Richard Redding, of North Kingsville, O., was busy at the top of a 30-foot pole in Sicily. In back of him, swarms of German Messerschmitts were coming in over a hill.

Just then a car drove up and a voice called out.

"What are you doing up there?"

Redding, not bothering to look down, replied, "Working."

The voice asked again how long he had been there. Twenty minutes, he answered.

Then came still another query: "Don't the planes annoy you?"

"Hell no, but you do," he shouted back.

Down below, the questioner turned away grinning. It was Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr. The story was related today by Brig. Gen. William S. Rumbrough, chief signal officer, European theatre of operations.

SOLDIER VOTE MEASURE HEADS TO COMPROMISE

Crushing House Defeat Of 100 Percent Federal Ballot Sends Bill To Senate

FINAL ACCORD FORECAST

States' Rights Advocates Say U. S. Will Rule Only When Districts Fail

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4—A crushing house defeat of administration demands for a 100 percent federal ballot sent the soldier vote bill to the senate today for an inevitable compromise.

House "states' rights" advocates who led the gruelling 10-hour floor battle against a federal "short" ballot for all members of the armed forces predicted final agreement on "something like the Ball amendment."

The Ball proposal, one part of the so-called Taft amendment up for senate consideration today, would permit a federal ballot only for those states which failed to provide adequate absentee voting for all elective offices.

Climax of the long night house session was reached when angry Republicans and southern Democrats answered President Roosevelt's challenge to "stand up and be counted" on the federal ballot issue. The coalition which refused to change house rules to make such a test possible two days earlier, demanded the record vote after killing the Worley federal ballot proposal by a margin of 51 votes.

Vote 224 To 168

On a roll call vote of 224 to 168, the states' rights forces defeated their own motion to recommit the state ballot bill of Rep. Rankin (D) Miss.

Their iron control of the house held firm despite temper flareups over the extended session until the Rankin measure, amending an original senate bill, was passed by a 328-69 roll call count.

The dramatic house action came after the senate by a 79-13 vote had approved a compromise proposal of Sen. Danaher (R) Conn. The Danaher amendment differs from the Ball plan mainly in that it would give a federal ballot to all servicemen and women outside the United States and to those stationed in this country whose states had not provided absentee local ballots.

Amendment Accepted

The Danaher amendment was accepted by Sens. Lucas (D) Ill. and Green (D) R. I., sponsors of the administration senate plan.

The indicated procedure appeared to be that the senate federal ballot supporters would move to concur in the house-approved bill with an amendment such as the Green-Lucas-Danaher proposal and return it to the house for an ultimate compromise in a conference committee.

Among other compromise offers, the house rejected provisions of the Taft amendment when it was put up by Rep. Bates (R) Mass.

In the senate, the amendment bearing the name of Sen. Taft (R) Ohio, and supported by 14 (Continued on Page Three)

FORD REPAIRS WATCH FOR FILM ACTOR GUEST

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 4—Film Star Walter Pidgeon considered himself a lucky man today that he didn't get a bill for having his watch repaired in Detroit.

The actor, just back from War Bond appearances, said something went wrong with the stem of his watch and he happened to mention it while visiting auto magnate Henry Ford.

"Let me have the watch," said Ford.

Whereupon the industrialist retired to his private work-shop and personally repaired the damage. "I used to work on watches," he told Pidgeon.

Namur Island Scene Of Utter Desolation After Marines Wipe Out Japs

NAMUR ISLAND, KWAJALEIN ATOLL, THE MARSHALLS, Feb. 3—(Delayed)—Scattered snipers and unseen enemy wounded remain on this shattered, stinking island, but the actual end of sustained combat came at 1 p. m. yesterday in a little corner near the northwest tip of Namur island as the Marines pressed in for the kill.

Organized enemy resistance was ended, and even the toughened, battle-hardened Marines were disgusted with the task of wiping out Japanese troops who hovered on the borderline of insanity as the result of the Allied bombardment and the ensuing hopeless retreat across the island.

U. S. casualties have been very moderate, although they include one of the most popular officers in the Marine corps.

Only a few score Japanese of the original force who garrisoned Namur and the adjoining island of Roi were left as a ring of Marine gunfire tightened about their defensive position, which probably was a command post.

Hopeless Defense

Their fight was hopeless from the very beginning. It was a murderous bombardment, then an inevitable retreat in the face of superior Marine fire power. Light mobile artillery, flamethrowers and bazookas thundered and rocked against the crumbling concrete pillboxes and then the Japanese were surrounded.

Most remained in hiding, waiting the end which came quickly in most cases. Only a few tried to break the encirclement and they could not make it.

In their two-day battle, the Japanese resorted to a few of their favorite tactics. During the night, some crawled back into wrecked pillboxes and had to be killed yesterday morning.

The most ambitious maneuver of this kind involved a half dozen riflemen who sneaked into a dug-out and harassed rear echelons until an unidentified sergeant walked inside alone with a Garand and killed every living Japanese.

First Sergeant Archie Vale, 45, Grand Junction, Colo., was credited with destroying another nest of snipers. He shot three Japanese and then tossed in a grenade.

"They'd keep popping up and I threw more grenades," he said. "The tip of one officer's saber kept showing above the shell hole where the Japs lay."

Vale killed 13 Japanese, including three officers.

The Marines brought ashore a large assortment of heavy and fancy weapons past the wrecked (Continued on Page Three)

FREDDIE SMITH, HERO OF MUNDA, SELLING BONDS

Corporal Freddie Smith has not done enough for Uncle Sam's war effort.

He is out selling bonds now to help put the Fourth War Loan campaign over the top.

Of course, Freddie's role in the war effort has been a "minor" one.

He fought the Japs on the New Georgia island of Munda, lived in a fox hole, stayed awake at night to prevent Nips from slipping in to the fox hole beside him, killed Japs with a Garand rifle, and then took a piece of steel from a Jap mortar shell into his side. He still carries that piece of steel in his body, less than two inches from his heart.

But still, he thinks he has not done enough for the war effort.

Freddie is at Camp Maxey, Texas, and he is carrying on the War Bond cry before soldiers in that camp who are preparing to do the same things he has done to help Uncle Sam overcome the Japrats. The soldiers are doing their part in the War Bond drive, too, buying up the $50,000 quota assigned the camp after Smith and other veterans who are termed "Minute Men" voiced appeals.

Young Smith wears the Purple Heart for his wound, and he also has other campaign awards on his chest. He served in the Fijis, Guadalcanal, Russell Island and the New Georgia campaigns.

All the "Minute Men" in the camp are home because of wounds.

The group has made 14 appearances at Camp Maxey urging purchase of War Bonds.

Took Draft Drug

FBI in Washington announces the arrest of 18 Washington men, including Everett M. (Washie) Bratcher, 28-year-old hotel-orchestra leader, in an attempt to violate the selective service act through the use of drugs producing high blood pressure. The men took the drug, according to the FBI, shortly before reporting to the inducting center at Fort Myer, Va.

YANK FORCED TO MURDER BUDDY

Further Evidence Given Of Jap Atrocities During March Of Death

NEW YORK, Feb. 4—Commander Melvin McCoy, of the United States Navy, one of 10 men who escaped from the Philippine islands, gave the nation further first hand evidence today of the horrible atrocities perpetrated on American prisoners of war by their Japanese captors.

Quoting another officer, Commander McCoy said:

"In one case, an enlisted man keeled over (during the 'March of Death') and the Japs dragged him to a ditch about a hundred yards from the road. Another prisoner was brought over to the ditch and handed a shovel. A guard jabbed him in the ribs with his bayonet and he was made to shovel earth on the unconscious, but still living man."

"He had shoveled six inches of earth over him when suddenly the man regained consciousness and (Continued on Page Three)

7,000 FOUNDRY MEN TO QUIT IF HOIST IS DENIED

CHICAGO, Feb. 4—A threatened strike of 7,000 members of the Molders and Foundry Workers Union of North America (AFL) employed in 50 Chicago foundries hung in the balance today.

Union leaders said the men would be called out of the plants Monday in event of an unfavorable war labor board decision, scheduled for today, on a union appeal from rejections for a 6-cent hourly wage increase.

Union members voted to strike after both the regional and national WLB groups rejected the union wage demands last November. The strike was held in abeyance pending a new inquiry by a WLB investigation panel on which the awaited decision will be based.

Americans, Huns Locked In Bitter Struggle—Europe Again Bomb Target

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4—The navy disclosed today that three Nazi blockade runners had been sunk by the blazing guns of American warships while sneaking across the South Atlantic with vital war cargoes from Japanese ports.

A large number of prisoners were captured.

Hundreds of tons of baled rubber were seized after the German ships Burgenland, Rio Grande and Weserland were sunk by the U. S. cruisers Omaha and the destroyers Spomers and Jouett.

The navy said the Nazi vessels were enroute from far eastern Japanese ports with their holds filled "with thousands of tons of rubber, tin, fats and strategic ores."

By International News Service

Russian legions which advanced over piles of German dead and wrecked tanks slashed savagely today at some 150,000 fiercely-resisting Nazis caught in a huge pocket west of Cherkassy in the Dnieper bend. Front-line dispatches indicated the plight of the enemy was virtually hopeless.

Tank armadas and huge artillery concentrations of the first and second Ukrainian armies, which formed the iron ring about the hapless Germans, battered ceaselessly at the Nazis. Already the Russians were credited with annihilating some 10,000 of the encircled troops.

The trap was snapped on 10 enemy divisions when the armies of Gen. Nikolai F. Vatutin and Ivan S. Konev surged forward in a twin five-day offensive. The Russians overran more than 300 towns and villages, advancing from 30 to 45 miles to join forces in the Zvenigor-Shpolia sector.

According to Pravda, Communist party publication, the Soviet advance was made over a path "littered with hundreds of piles of German dead, and twisted wreckage of enemy tanks."

In the far north, where troops of the Leningrad front have swept into Estonia, the Red Army was reported "almost at the gates of Narva."

WILLKIE TOUR MAY INDICATE VOTE STRENGTH

NEW YORK, Feb. 4—Wendell L. Willkie was scheduled to leave New York today on a two week tour of the Northwest, which observers believe will be the deciding factor in determining his stand in the presidential primary campaigns of this Spring.

Willkie reported favorable public reaction to his address of Wednesday night, in which he called for increased taxes during the war period, and a modified schedule to assist post-war production.

Willkie's first stop will be in Milwaukee tomorrow afternoon. There, he is expected to confer with delegates, whose support was pledged to him for the Republican presidential nomination.

His western schedule follows: Salt Lake City, February 7; Boise, Idaho; February 9; Seattle, February 10; Tacoma, Wash., February 11; Portland, Ore., February 12; Spokane, Wash., February 13; Great Falls and Billings, Mont., February 16; and Minneapolis, February 18.

G. O. P. Solon Suggests Backing Promotions, Gaining Army Votes

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—It never leaked out of the recent Senate Republican caucus, but Senator Chan Gurney of South Dakota dropped a boomerang idea for corraling Republican votes in the U. S. Army.

Fellow Republican Senators didn't go for Gurney's brain-storm, partly because they thought it played down the same ally as the Harrison Spangler boner when he announced that he had had a poll made by Army officers in England which he claimed showed they were against Roosevelt.

Gurney stood up in caucus to warn Republicans that Democratic Senators on the Military Affairs Committee, among them Kilgore of West Virginia, Wallgren of Washington, and Truman of Missouri, were determined to block the permanent promotions of General Patton and General Somervell.

Both generals have been severely criticized, the first for slapping a sick soldier in a Sicilian hospital, the second for spending millions of the American taxpayers' dollars on the controversial pipe line through the Arctic wastes from Canada to Alaska. Nevertheless, the Army has recommended both men for permanent promotion to the rank of major-general.

In view of this, Democratic members of the Military Affairs Committee proposed that, because the Army tried to rush through promotions, all permanent promotions be held up until the war is over, when they can be scrutinized carefully, and those who really deserve reward can be promoted.

Gurney, after telling his Republican colleagues about Democratic opposition to permanent promotions, said:

"This is a real opportunity for the Republicans to win the soldiers' vote, if we come out for it. It calls for united action on the part of all Republican Senators. And if we stick together, we can put through these promotions."

Note—What Senator Gurney didn't seem to appreciate, however, is that it's the vote of the enlisted men that really counts. And political sharps believe the men's vote is generally opposite to that of officers.

GRACIOUS LEO CROWLEY

One matter which long has worried the British is agitation by American peace societies to get food into occupied Europe. The British fear that this food would be smuggled out to relieve Germany, and so far President Roosevelt and the State Department have vigorously supported them.

The other day, however, the British Minister of Economic Warfare was disturbed by reports that Leo Crowley, Foreign Economic Administrator, was under pressure to change this policy and send food to occupied France, Holland, Belgium. So a representative of the Ministry went to see William Stone, an aide to Crowley. After he'd expressed his fears to Stone and the arguments against sending food to occupied Europe, Stone suggested that they go in to see Crowley himself.

Crowley was most gracious, but rather confused the Britisher when he said:

"Let's just sit right down around the table and talk this over. We're partners in this war, and if you want those food shipments to go through, we'll fix it up no matter what it costs us."

LOVE LOVES LOVELY PROFITS

Hard-hitting Chester Bowles, OPA Administrator, has written a scorching letter to Donald Nelson, protesting against what some people consider sabotage inside the War Production Board against the OPA and its effort to prevent inflation.

Bowles' letter was directed specifically against Spencer Love, head of the Burlington Mills in Greensboro, N. C., now serving as

MOTHER GOES TO VISIT MARINE WHO IS AT HOME

One of the sad stories that usually accompany embarkation of troops to any war theatre took place in Circleville and at Camp LeJeune, New River, N. C. this week.

Mrs. Vere Thomas of Circleville had learned that her son, Sergeant Irvin Thomas of the Marine Corps, was about to be transferred from New River, either to another post or into a war theatre. Her son had informed her that he would probably not be permitted a leave prior to his assignment to a new area.

So Mrs. Thomas arranged transportation and left for New River to visit her son.

In the meantime, young Thomas was granted a surprise five day leave to visit his parents.

While the youth was traveling to Circleville, his mother was on the way to Camp LeJeune. When she arrived at the Marine base, Sergeant Thomas arrived at home.

Now it is likely that neither will be able to visit the other before the transfer takes place.

FOX DRIVE SATURDAY TO GET UNDER WAY AT 10:30

Saturday's fox drive in Pickaway township district will get under way at 10:30 a. m. with all interested persons asked to gather at the school building from which the point the drive will be formed. Men and youths taking part are permitted to take shotguns, and they must also carry 1943 hunting licenses which are still good. There is reported to be a large number of foxes in Pickaway township.

VICTORY IN '44?

DURWARD DOWDEN: "Unless things are developing of which I have no knowledge we will still be fighting in Europe a year from now."

'LUCK OF LONDON' PITTSBURGH, Pa.—The chain letter craze is reported back again in Pittsburgh. But in place of the grandiose promises of cash which the original letters held, the current form offers "The Luck of London," a special dispensation which may appear in any form. It was said to have been originated in London by an American army officer. A letter received by Mrs. Catherine Rolewski directed her to "send the letter and four copies to people whom you wish good luck."

Officer at Fort Meade, Maryland:—You may not be aware of it, but there are 3,000 men at your post, every one a trained parachute trooper, all depressed and disheartened because they have lost their "jump status" while waiting to be sent overseas.

These men will be among the shock troops of the European invasion force. They take pride in their status as parachute jumpers. But for some strange reason, the War Department is trying to economize on these men by depriving them temporarily of the extra pay they receive as jumpers—$50 a month for enlisted men and $100 for officers.

It is not the cut in pay which disheartens them so much as their loss of standing. To remove a man's jump status is like taking the wings from an aviator.

NEW RULE APPLIES ON RATION CERTIFICATES

Persons applying to the Pickaway county war price and rationing office for gasoline rations, certificates of purchase for any rationed goods, or for anything else that the OPA office dispenses were informed Friday that no more over-the-counter deliveries are permitted under new regulations.

Harry B. Welch, chief clerk of the office, said Friday that the regulation ordering the office to make all deliveries of coupons and certificates for purchase of rationed goods by mail is effective now.

Applications may be filed with the clerks at the rationing office, but no one is permitted under the new rulings to receive his coupons or certificates over the counter at the ration office.

The policy is adopted to save time in the ration office.

HEAVIER BUTCHER HOGS GAIN PRICE SUPPORT

A. A. A. office was informed Friday by the War Food administration that a temporary emergency extension of the price support program to include good and choice butcher hogs weighing from 300 to 330 pounds has been granted. The action was taken, the A. A. A. office was told, to protect hog growers who are unable to market at present, and have therefore been forced to feed above 300 pounds, the previous upper weight limit in the price support program.

W. F. A. told the local office that it is hoped that the temporary increase in the price support limits will encourage more orderly marketing and help relieve market congestion.

Farmers owning hogs of less than 200 pounds are being urged to keep them off the market until congestion has been relieved.

FILES CROSS PETITION Mrs. Martha L. Ankrom of Circleville filed an answer and cross petition Thursday in common pleas court against the divorce action brought by her husband, Merle K. Ankrom. Mr. Ankrom, who is home on furlough from an army camp, charged his wife with neglect of duty, Mrs. Ankrom's petition claiming extreme cruelty. A restraining order was granted by Judge Meeker Terwilliger to prevent the husband from molesting Mrs. Ankrom or her mother, Mrs. Martha Garvey. Mrs. Ankrom is a minor of 19. The couple has a daughter.

ANNIHILATION OF JAPS PROCEEDS IN MARSHALLS

Sea And Air Barrage Aid Yanks Whose Loss Ratio Is One To 46

(Continued from Page One) Kwajalein counterattacked the night of February 1-2, but were "dispersed with heavy losses to the enemy."

At dawn the next day, the spokesman said, soldiers of the Seventh reopened their attacks and continued to make "satisfactory progress."

Few Prisoners
Their backs to the sea and all hope of escape in that direction cut off by salvos from America's mighty armada, it was apparent that the shattered Jap garrison of Kwajalein faces capture or death. Early crushing of the last enemy resistance was expected to be announced today.

Only a few Jap prisoners have been taken. Almost crazed by the terrific shelling and bombing, including high explosive from artillery the Seventh hauled into position on small islets flanking Kwajalein, these were reported to have expressed their belief Japan has already lost the war.

With Kwajalein island in American hands and Marines pushing down from the north, the doom of the entire key atoll is assured. Its possession would give the invaders at least two big airfields and strong bases for an assault against the rest of the Marshall chain.

The Leathernecks, who seized Roi at the outer fringe of the 655-mile square atoll, took adjoining Namur island soon thereafter and came into possession of the triple-runway airfield to cover their position and to be used as a striking base in further operations.

Light Marine Losses
Capture of the Roi-Namur sector and the four islets of Gagan, Edjeil, Dubu and Edgjein, cost the Marines 100 dead and less than 400 wounded. There was no estimate available of enemy losses in that area nor indication of strength of the initial garrison.

The airfield on Kwajalein, not yet used by the Japs as far as is known, will also be used by American planes once it can be put in condition.

As Kwajalein island is the key to the atoll bearing that name, so is the atoll the key to possession of the Marshalls. Initial landings at opposite ends of the atoll, following a sea and air pounding that reduced to rubble the defenses the Japs have spent 20 years and millions of yen in perfecting, came as a complete surprise.

By-passing eastern defenses of the chain such as Wotje and Maleolap, as Kiska in the Aleutians was by-passed to take Attu, army troops and Marines struck where they were least expected and sliced directly at the heart of Nippon's eastern wall.

In view of Admiral Nimitz's initial communique on the invasion setting the goal, as "the capture of the Marshall Islands," it was apparent that once Kwajalein falls moves against other atolls in the chain will not be long in coming.

America Moves Ahead
Success in that action would move America's Pacific defenses from Pearl Harbor more than 2,000 miles to the west and give our forces a striking base against Truk, 1,046 miles westward, the Philippines and Japan itself.

While there was no indication from Admiral Nimitz that the invading forces and their covering fleet have met opposition from enemy planes or submarines, American warcraft were still active.

Continuing their assaults against land objectives and other islands in the Marshall group, land and carrier based bombers with swarms of fighters hit at Jap bases and neutralized enemy air-strips with incessant bombing and strafing.

Record Battle
What opened as the biggest thing yet to explode in the Pacific, shaped up today as possibly the greatest battle of the global war.

Admiral Nimitz, in a communique last night, announced an attack by bombers of the Seventh army air force against a new Marshalls target and additional strikes against other bases in the chain.

Rongelap, approximately 125 miles northwest of Kwajalein, was raided Wednesday by Liberators which hammered ground installations with nearly eight tons of bombs.

Dauntless dive bombers on the same day dropped more than 13 tons of explosives on the airdrome and gun emplacements at Mille.

Tuesday, navy reconnaissance planes hit a small enemy cargo vessel at Namu atoll and dropped a ton of bombs each on Wotje and Tarao at Maleolap.

Rongelap atoll, mentioned for the first time in navy communiqués, is virtually an unknown quantity.

At present, there is no information available as to the nature and size of the Jap base there. Neither was there any estimate given of the extent of damage done there.

Moderate anti-aircraft fire was encountered on both missions

BLAST VICTIM'S FUNERAL TO BE HELD SUNDAY

Funeral services will be held Sunday at 2:30 p. m. in the Stoutsville Lutheran church, the Rev. H. B. Drum officiating, for Robert M. Aldenderfer, 28, of 218 Watt street, who died at noon Thursday in the Lockbourne army air base hospital. Burns suffered Wednesday in an explosion in a shed at the base caused Mr. Aldenderfer's death.

The local man was the third to die as a result of injuries suffered in the explosion, others who lost their lives being George W. Hoffman, 31, of Carroll, and Willoughby E. McClure, 48, of Columbus.

All three lost their lives when a stove exploded in the shed where they had gone to change clothing which had been soaked by aviation gasoline they were transferring from a tank car to a tank at the base.

Another Circleville man, William Lake, narrowly escaped with his life. Lake was in the shed with the men when one of them suggested that he go to another shed to obtain a first aid kit. The gasoline was causing the men discomfort. A minute after Lake left the building, the explosion happened.

Mr. Aldenderfer is survived by his widow, Ruth Alice Hott Aldenderfer; two daughters, Eleanor, 4, and Patricia, 2; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clark Aldenderfer, 212 North Scioto street; his maternal grandmother, Mrs. Emma Smith, Amanda, and a brother, Harry L. The air base employee was a resident of Stoutsville most of his life, graduating from high school there in 1935.

The body will be removed to the home of his parents, North Scioto street, where friends may call after 7 p. m. Friday. Burial will be in Maple Hill cemetery, Stoutsville, by Crites and Van Cleave, Amanda.

DRAFTEE STARTS FOR EXAM, LANDS IN JAIL

Police have a customer on their hands, and they don't know just what to do with him.

The man was identified as Wilfred Phillips, 28, of Wellston. Phillips was on his way to Columbus to appear before the army medical team for a pre-induction physical examination. The contingent's acting corporal and the bus driver hauling the group refused to go any farther with the man. He had been drinking, police were told, and was causing a disturbance on the bus.

Police agreed to take him off the bus, but what will become of him now is not clear.

SOVIET LEGIONS ADVANCE OVER PILES OF DEAD

Germans Caught In Huge Pocket Near Cherkassy in Dnieper Bend

On other fronts, meantime, additional Red Army columns threatened the Nazis with annihilation or entrapment.

Battle At Cassino

A bitter struggle between American assault forces and German defense units was in progress today for possession of Cassino, strongly fortified Nazi bastion on the Via Cassilina 79 miles below Rome.

Yanks who previously made two sorties into the town to determine the German strength and were forced to retire again re-entered Cassino in greater strength.

Latest reports from the main Fifth Army front said that Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark's American infantrymen surged into Cassino to engage the Nazis in grueling street fighting. The Yanks forced their way from house to house to oust the Nazis from strongpoints.

One correspondent at the front described the new American assault as a deadly game of hide and seek, with the Americans having to fight their way almost from room to room.

The infantry poured down into Cassino from surrounding high ground after further preparation by American artillery and advanced behind armored forces.

Fierce Resistance

The Germans inside Cassino where every house has been turned into a virtual pillbox resisted fiercely and it was apparent that the Nazi high command had ordered its forces to hold out as long as possible despite the fact that the Gustav defense line already has been pierced above Cassino.

American and French units which scored the five-mile breakthrough northeast of Cassino were reported unofficially to have entered the mountain village of Terrile and also to have seized strategic Mount Castellone. These advancing units, pressing to the northwest, were swinging on an arc which would bring them in behind the Nazis at Cassino and threaten the German defenders with entrapment.

The fighting on several sectors of the main Fifth Army front was termed "hard" by the headquarters and stiff combat also was reported from some areas of the invasion beachhead south of Rome.

American and British forces remained locked with the Germans in tough fighting on the Cisterna and Campoleone sectors. The Yanks immediately below the Nazi-held capital battled to oust the Germans from Cisterna and gain control of the ancient Apennine Way at that point. The British around Campoleone, 10 miles to the north, were battling to achieve a breakthrough in the direction of Albano.

Allied bombers and fighter squadrons in England soared over the continent in strength in daylight today to maintain the relentless bombardment of Nazi-held Europe.

The formations requiring 90 minutes to pass a given point over the southeast coast of England swept out toward Europe on the return of British Mosquito bombers which blasted objectives in western Germany for the third successive night.

BROTHERHOOD STAGES YEARLY GROUNDHOG MEET

Trinity Lutheran Brotherhood conducted its annual "groundhog" meeting Thursday evening, the session being a splendid one from standpoint of attendance and interest. A lunch of ice cream, cookies, doughnuts and coffee was served.

Music was provided by Robert Sprouse, soloist, who sang "The Thief, Old Father Time" and "On the Road to Mandalay," Miss Anna Schleyer playing his accompaniment.

W. M. Reid spoke on the history of groundhog day, the annual groundhog election was held, and R. L. Brehmer evened some scores with Brotherhood members when he spoke on "The Groundhogs of Our Brotherhood." Carl C. Leist and George C. Griffith each read original poems. Songs were led by John W. Walters.

At the next meeting, John Cooper, Columbus attorney who is an authority on Lincoln, will speak. The meeting will be February 17. The Rev. E. H. E. Winterhoff will have charge of a Washington-Lincoln contest, and E. C. Ebert will have charge of patriotic music.

KURILES HIT

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—Another night bombing attack by American planes from the Aleutians against Japanese positions on Paramushiru in the Kuriles was announced today by the navy. The latest assault was carried out on the night of February 2-3 by two navy Catalinas, but results were not observed. No enemy planes were encountered and the U. S. bombers returned safely.

LODGE QUILTS SENATE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—Sir Henry Cabot Lodge (R) Mass., today resigned from the senate to return to duty in the army in which he holds the rank of major. He is 41 years old. Lodge announced his decision to return to active duty in a letter to the president of the senate.

went out the Nazi-operated Danish radio announced it was closing down "for military reasons."

An official statement said that strong formations of American heavy bombers escorted by long-range fighters and supported by RAF and Allied craft had bombed targets in Western Germany. Nazi raiders stabbed twice at London while the British night bombers were in action over the Reich.

Royal Air Force craft also laid mines in Nazi-controlled waters. None of the British craft was lost.

The two attempted strikes against the British capital came eight hours apart, one about 9 p. m. last night and the second at 5 a. m. this morning. Four of the German raiders were knocked down over England and a fifth, a Junkers 188, was shot down as it sought to land at its home airdrome in France by a Canadian intruder plane.

beach defenses. The battle, however, became true French and Indian warfare—tree to tree, men flopping into the coral soil behind available protection when hidden enemy rifles and machineguns opened fire, then circling the flanking pocket of resistance and finally destroying it with grenades and bullets.

The effect of the bombardment can be appreciated only by seeing the destruction wrought on the islands of Roi and Namur, blockhouses terrifically battered, gun barrels of the coastal defenses twisted and shattered amidst debris and the dismembered bodies of their crews.

Island An Inferno

The entire island of Namur was transformed into an inferno. Neat rows of palm trees were mutilated and burned by shells and bombs. Tin-roofed barracks were crumpled and disintegrated. Sturdier buildings were burned, gutting themselves to their concrete framework.

The explosion of one blockhouse threw debris 3,000 feet into the air.

Tons of stores and supplies now are pouring ashore, and the Marines who destroyed enemy resistance in 24 1/2 hours are unloading cargo from scores of landing craft. The crowded beaches greatly resemble Coney Island on a hot Summer day. There is a display of newly-acquired loot—nearly every other man carries a bottle of sake wine or asahi beer. Other Marines captured officers' swords, knives and insignia and stared in awe at pornographic pictures, of which the Japanese seemed to have plenty.

Mostly the Marines are sleeping and eating, comparing experiences and wishing they could remove some of the rotting bodies from these islands.

They also are finding out who was killed or wounded. While U. S. casualties were very moderate, each one shot was hard to take.

Popular Officer Killed

They brought down the body of one of the most popular officers in the Marine corps yesterday afternoon. He leaped into battle, throwing grenades and firing a rifle, standing upright in a field of fire. A machine gun burst got him.

As his poncho-covered body came down a trail on a litter, one Marine told me:

"He was standing up when he got it."

The Marine looked at the corpse and muttered, "damn fool!"

There were tears in his eyes as he plodded on.

with plans for simplification of taxation. The house ways and means committee, aided by congressional tax experts, plans to begin work on simplification as soon as the tax bill is sent to the white house.

Despite reports that President Roosevelt might veto the new tax bill because it "freezes" social security taxes at present level, most congressional leaders expect him to sign it. They pointed out that while the President has complained about tax bills he has not vetoed one as yet.

SOLDIER VOTE MEASURE HEADS TO COMPROMISE

"I think we have a good chance to win. When the authors of the Green-Lucas bill accepted the Danaher amendment they admitted the principle that a state ballot should be supplied over a federal ballot."

To Limit Ballot

"They agree to generally limit the federal ballot to overseas, so the only question is one of transportation and I think we can show that state ballots can be delivered overseas just as well as they can in the United States. I think acceptance of the Danaher amendment strengthens our arguments."

Lucas maintained that the Danaher amendment "does not do extreme violence" to his bill.

"It does have the element of states rights recognition but it is modified by provision that if a soldier in this country makes a statement that he has not obtained a state ballot he can vote the federal ballot."

House states rights advocates were jubilant over their victory. Rep. Vursell (R) Ill., one of those who had most hotly denounced President Roosevelt for his recent message terming the states rights legislation "a fraud upon the American people," said:

"The passage of the committee bill was a fine expression of courage by the members of the house, a great victory in the interest of the soldiers and for the constitutional government for which we are fighting."

"The proponents of the bill offered the motion to stand up and be counted. People have been given a message that constitutional government still lives and is growing stronger on Capitol Hill."

clawed his way out and sat up. The Japs jabbed the prisoner viciously with bayonets. He was forced to kill the man with his shovel and then finish burying him."

Commander McCoy said the man who thus was driven to killing one of his buddies "never tried to excuse himself for going through with it."

"We all knew," he explained, "that a man crazed by thirst and hunger and already at the point of exhaustion is not a rational being. Automatic reflexes alone will cause him to hang onto his existence... he will do anything to stay alive."

Another case he cited was where the Japanese jammed the prisoners into a warehouse, which had little ventilation and no sanitation facilities. As a result, many of the American and Filipino soldiers died during the night.

He said that he and his nine companions decided to try the escape attempt, despite the horrible penalty they knew would face them if caught, because "if we stayed the odds were against us getting out alive."

ment did not close the door to further discussion of the problem, and Moscow is giving an attentive ear to Washington's views as outlined by American Ambassador W. Averell Harriman.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull and his associates also have been giving active consideration to the views of the Polish refugee government in London. The Poles would like the United States as well as Great Britain to guarantee any settlement which a free Poland might make with Russia.

The Poles further would like some expression of opinion from the American government concerning its attitude toward the possibility of Poland acquiring East Prussia and other German territory as compensation for the probable loss to Russia of most of its prewar eastern territories.

The possibility of a change in the Polish government to remove those members considered particularly objectionable by Moscow also has been the subject of discussion. According to one report current in diplomatic circles, Moscow would like to have two or three members of the pro-Soviet Union of Polish patriots organized included in the Polish government in London.

OPEN LETTERS

TO COUNCILMEN

OFFICIALS: Railroads have a mighty tough job on their hands. They are carrying the nation's war materials, and they are suffering from manpower shortages, too. But these facts do not contain any excuse for the condition of Circleville's crossings. They are in terrible condition. Since council has instituted action which may force one of the roads to correct its crossing condition, I am of the opinion that the railroad will probably tell the city to go ahead and do the work and that the utility will make proper payment. This can be done, and it should be done.

CIRCUITEER.

TO DAIRY FARMERS

PRODUCERS: You men are doing a real job for Uncle Sam's fighting men by producing thousands of pounds of milk and butterfat. Taking into consideration that this county is not considered an outstanding dairy district, you have done quite well in the last checking period—the last quarter of 1943. Nearly 4,000,000 pounds of milk and nearly 30,000 pounds of butterfat came from your farms. The money you are earning is not nearly so huge as the amount of goods you are producing, but you are doing your best to feed the nation, its men in service and to help the government care for its lend-lease obligations.

CIRCUITEER.

TO CIVIC CLUBS

ALL: Circleville's system of house numbers is in a terrible state of affairs, and just what can be done about it I do not know. Some service club might take it on itself to contact the postoffice department and try to work out a revision plan wherein the numbers would at least be in order. On many homes numbers are missing completely; in other places they are terribly out of order. More efficient mail service might be provided if the numbers were corrected. There are several Circleville streets which are also without names, at least motorists trying to find certain streets are unable to do so. This system might be corrected, too.

CIRCUITEER.

TO SALT CREEK GRANGE

RURAL FRIENDS: You people are making a splendid gesture by voting to appear en masse at the next visit of the Red Cross mobile unit blood bank to contribute your blood to help save the lives of wounded men in service. I can't thank you too much for deciding to take this action. Your blood is needed, and so is that of thousands of others. Many men will be wounded, many men will lose much blood as a result of their injuries, but you can save countless lives by helping in this manner. Watch for the next visit of the mobile unit. You will be notified when to report to make your donation.

CIRCUITEER.

TO SPORTSMEN

FELLOWS: The little fox, and he is cunning, too, will be sought Saturday morning starting at 10:30, and the Pickaway township school will be the gathering place. There are lots of foxes in Pickaway township and the drive should provide much sport. You are permitted to take shotguns, and you must be carrying licenses. The license you used to take rabbits and pheasants is still good. Proceeds of the auction after the hunt will go to Red Cross. You'll have a good time, destructive fox will be destroyed, and a worthy cause will benefit. What more could you ask?

CIRCUITEER.

TO CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

SIRS: Your annual meeting was a great success from almost any angle. The address was interesting, the spirit of fellowship prevailing was outstanding, the report of the secretary on the year's activities was splendid, and the food served by the ladies of the Presbyterian church was excellent. The value of the Chamber has been proven many times over.

CIRCUITEER.

TO BOOK READERS

FOLK: I was pleased to read that so many of you have started to read books on history. How would you like to study history 15 years from now? What a book historians will be able to write. It is fitting that history should be read; stories by men coming from war theatres are always interesting, and they provide much information.

CIRCUITEER.

TO HOUSEWIVES

WOMEN: A tin can salvage program is coming up next week in Circleville, and on your shoulders rests its success. The drive is scheduled Wednesday, with service department men to collect cans at homes which have them ready to be picked up. The cans must be cleaned and properly crushed, or they will not be picked up. Uncle Sam still needs tin and this is the best way he can obtain it. There are thousands of tin cans all ready to be picked up, so service department trucks should not have any trouble making a clean up.

CIRCUITEER.

TO GRAND AND CLIFTONA

THEATRES: Thanks to Circleville's theatres the March of Dimes campaign here was a marked success. The Grand and Cliftona did a swell job of taking collections, and their patrons did nicely, too, by putting their money in containers when they were passed. That $715.57 could be collected is splendid, and a great big orchid is yours.

CIRCUITEER.

TO POLICE DEPARTMENT

OFFICERS: You fellows did a mighty sweet piece of work last week in grabbing two youths who were wanted for armed robbery in Chillicothe. The whole story of the captures is a story of cooperation between Circleville's law enforcement units. By pulling together, you fellows are able to do a very efficient job. Keep it up.

Inside WASHINGTON

By HELEN ESSARY
Central Press Columnist

● WASHINGTON—And now I hear that the rush of foreign correspondents for seats at the not too far away Democratic national convention in Chicago is embarrassing the White House. Chicago is definitely the middle west. More, it is the center of America for many Americans.

However agreed the delegates to the convention may be as to the importance of supporting President Roosevelt, the convention as a whole will have to take an America-for-Americans policy. If too many strange writers pop into the convention picture, the convention may give the appearance of being for most any part of the foreign world except the United States. Correspondents from as far away as China, Australia, the remote Latin Americas, uncertain France, South Africa, New Zealand—men and women representing all areas not Axis—are now pushing hard for seats at Chicago.

Here is an international complication which the Republicans may turn to their own use.

● WHILE WE ARE TALKING about journalistic attitudes—there are many people in Washington who believe that the president is now engaged in tapering the White House press conferences down to nothing at all. Many recent White House press conferences have been skipped for one reason or another. Even the least-knowing Washington writer wonders what this presidential withdrawal means. Surely it must be a compass that indicates conferences are over for the duration.

Woodrow Wilson, whose path Franklin Roosevelt seems to be following in a somewhat enlarged way, suspended his press conferences during the second year of World War I. He said "issues" had arisen upon which he could not speak "even informally and without quotation."

Wilson's successor, Warren Harding, revived the press conferences immediately after his inauguration. President Coolidge followed Harding's lead the day he returned from the Harding funeral.

Before Harding came to the White House, no president of the United States had ever mentioned out loud the proceedings of a cabinet meeting. Harding's predecessors had thought cabinet meetings were sacred. What went on there was not the affair of the public. To return to Warren Harding's precedent breaking way of reporting on cabinet meetings. Before Harding it was considered shocking to ask about a cabinet meeting. Woodrow Wilson, who though an advocate of peace had his sharp moments, would have been enraged if anyone had mentioned a cabinet meeting in his presence. To him, the conservative professor, such audacity would have been almost punishable.

President Harding, generally a more trusting personality than Wilson as history unfortunately has revealed, talked with cheerful freedom about the questions that had come up at his "council table." President Wilson got no fun out of his meetings with the press. He almost never told anything of importance. He was civil and spared academically with his visitors. He was never personal. Supposedly silent President Coolidge, so the old-timers around Washington say, was so conversational about things of no importance that he was practically gossipy. Imagine that!

The first Roosevelt—Theodore—had many a mood and tense. He alternately roared and joked with whoever might be near by. With much anguish it was arranged to have a press conference for him following the wildly exciting announcement that he would run for a third term against his old friend William Howard Taft. The eager correspondents were ushered into the Rooseveltian conference room. There stood the colonel ready to shake hands with his callers. What would the Great Man say. Every writer was tense with anticipation.

Suddenly, Colonel Roosevelt noticed his old friend, Edward B. Clark, who combined writing for the Chicago Evening Post with a flair for ornithology.

Calling out, "Ed, I want to talk to you," the first Roosevelt took Clark by the hand and rushed him out of the hand-shaking line.

Hurrying him off to a far corner he began a lively conversation complete with gestures. Not about his campaign and his policies and why he had turned against Taft. But about—a new bird he had just found.

Undoubtedly, Franklin Roosevelt will reveal a nature of even more surprises than his distant relative, T. R., as World War II moves on, and the 1944 election day comes near.

Headaches Classified

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

"SPEAKING OF dyspepsia, as we were the other day," said the seer of Rosedale, Dr. Adrian Gibbs, "I always sort of classify headache and dyspepsia together."

"For one thing they both lead to confused thinking. Doctors are as likely to get mixed up on them as patients. I have known, in my time, four and twenty captains of revolt," said the old cardinal, in Browning's play. Well, I have known four and twenty kinds of headaches in my time—neuralgia, pelvic, bilious, gastric, intestinal absorption, uric acid and some of them are still mentioned but mostly they have gone their way.

"The occasional, or acute, headache is not usually hard to figure out. Any oncoming fever or influenza, or stopped nose, or spell of overwork will bring it on. The hangover headache should be an awful lesson, but too often it isn't. The young occasional drunk has the hangover headache. The old, regular boozier doesn't have a headache—he feels bad all over, every morning—and ascribes it to the whole world. That hangover headache is Nature's warning to the young drunk.

Acute Headache
"The acute headache is easy enough to cure. Treat the cause, or go to bed, or take that good old forgotten, reliable—5 grains of acetaminophen. But don't take it daily or you'll turn blue, like that ornament to the circuit bench, who was once a patient of mine. "The chronic headaches—in the sense that the doctors see them every day—have been ascribed to everything on earth. But my observations teach me that they can be reduced to four kinds:

"Medicine won't do the worry headache any good—just forms a habit. They need psychology. Diversion is a splendid remedy for them. Sometimes it has to be drastic. I knew a woman who found when her husband died that instead of being rich he left a lot of debts and a shaky business. She had to pitch in and get the business back on its feet, and she did a good job. And it cured her lifelong headaches. "Migraine, or sick headache, is real enough. It comes on periodically. The victim usually knows ahead of time when one of "my" headaches is coming on. That's one way of spotting it—they own it; it is "my" headache. It is called sick headache because there are often stomach symptoms too—lack of appetite, nausea, or vomiting. Sometimes the stomach symptoms show up without the headache. Then they may be called "bilious attacks." They ought to be called abdominal migraine.

CHAPTER THIRTY-SEVEN

TIED FROM the strenuous rehearsal, Mallory had walked into her apartment, yearning for a warm bath and one of Prisms' competent massages. The girl was allowing herself an hour for that and a short nap. To find Prisms sleeping annoyed her. But instantly she knew she should not be annoyed. She should be frightened. And she was. Terribly.

After having shaken Prisms' shoulder, just once, without a response, the singer raced to the telephone and called Richard shyly. Her first thought of the manager's assistance had been realized. He was not the one to help her; in fact, she did not even want him to know the circumstances.

"I'll not let one of those evasive mounds of Richard's give me the runaround." She need not have worried in such a manner. Blythe himself answered. "Richard," she said in a fast whisper, "Prisms was sound asleep when I left this morning for the rehearsal. She's still asleep. Richard, I'm scared. Do you think—"

The man interrupted. "Stop talking. I'll come right away." He was curt, but low-voiced also. "Keep it to yourself."

Mallory heard the ruck click of the receiver in her ear, but did not mind. Just to know that he was hurrying comforted her. It was fortunate that he was in town, that she could call upon him for help. Sandy wouldn't be much good in such a crisis. Tod Patrick? Of course Tod would. But he was sticking to New York, leaving her to attend to everything that went wrong. Conveniently, "he blond girl was ignoring the fact that she had told him to leave her alone."

Aware that she was ridiculous to expect him, she went onto the balcony and looked for Richard Blythe. Naturally he was nowhere in sight. But she could not bear to go back into Prisms' room. Instead, she telephoned again, to Manuella this time.

"I hope you and Carlos can come for cocktails at six this evening," into Manuella's brief, but obvious hesitation, Mallory inserted, "The man in the taxi will be here."

If the Mexican girl had thought of refusing, she was enticed by the thought of meeting Richard Blythe. She accepted with readiness. Mallory hung up, thinking happily. "I'll see Carlos in less than two hours." Her mirrored reflection brought the spoken word, "Oh, dear, I'll look awful."

Again she went out on the balcony, still complaining. Why couldn't she have just one normal lucid moment with Carlos? One normal lucid moment that they could make delicious. With her wearing some flattering evening gown, instead of her checked travel suit, with her face rested and child-like, instead of tired from rehearsal and worried over her maid. Why did she have to be in such a constant dither, fretting over everything from a concert to a murder, and over everybody from aspirin salesmen to a colored man?

She looked into the street again.

This time she was rewarded by the sight of Richard Blythe getting out of a car before the entrance of the Montecito. Mallory was waiting at her own door when she reached it. "Hi, princess," he greeted, coming inside quickly. "We've got work to do, but quick! Where's the kitchen?"

"This way." No matter how fast Mallory walked, he was right at her heels. In fact, they went through the swinging door together. The small room was uninviting after the early morning meal prepared by Armando. "Perhaps I should get a hotel maid to clean up this place," the girl suggested uncertainly.

"Better leave the hotel gang out of this. Armando, if you can be trusted, might do it for you. No one else." Blythe was setting a couple of packages on the white-tiled table. "I didn't want to talk too much over the telephone. Never know who's listening either here or at my place." He was filling a teakettle with water. "Wish I'd told you to have plenty of boiling water ready. Prisms must have lots of strong coffee." He took a can from one package. Coffee. Coffee from the States. My last of a long-treasured supply. There was a tiny burst of air as the boy rolled past the soldered spot. He twisted quickly, eyeing the teakettle with impatience.

"Watched pot" and so on," quoted the singer. "Richard, I don't want to sound foolish, but that aspirin—I think it was drugged. Was it?"

"It was! Rather the aspirin was not aspirin." His face was disagreeable. "I should think you'd have paid some attention to what you were giving your servant."

"It was dark in her room. Besides," flared Mallory. "I supposed you knew what you were talking about when you suggested I take a box from the Smith apartment. Surely you remember I was on my ways downstairs for aspirin—so it's really your fault!"

Richard Blythe's shoulders actually sagged. "Guess you're right. If only you'd taken a tin from those on the table that I'd already inspected. But, darn it all, you must have taken one from the carton when I wasn't paying any attention to you. Lighting a cigarette probably."

"But," condemned the girl a second time, "you should have been paying attention—the water is boiling," she snapped.

The man lifted the singing kettle from the flame. "I thought that was you singing." Instead of using the drop-pot, he poured a large amount of coffee into a pan, added the water and set it back over the heat to boil. "This coffee must be strong to do its work. Mallory, if I'd dared trust you last night, everything would have been simpler. But how in the heck was I to know your opinion of those buzzards? And how in the heck," he repeated, "was I to know that you were going to snatch the very box of some sort of drug. What better place could something like that be hidden than in an innocent Lincoln aspirin tin in an innocent Lincoln aspirin carton?"

Deercreek Garden Club Meets At Williamsport

Southern, Jungle Cultivation Discussed

Deercreek Garden club met Thursday in the Williamsport parish house, a fine talk by Mrs. J. W. Meyer on "Gardens of the South" being the feature of the session. Mrs. Meyer spoke especially of one that she had visited a few years ago, called, "The Jungle Gardens of Avery Island", located in New Iberia, La. She spoke of it as "a glimpse into the garden of Eden." It is considered the most beautiful garden in the South.

Mrs. W. D. Heiskell was hostess at the meeting. Twenty-five members were present and Mrs. Ella Hornbeck of Pinckney street was a guest for the evening.

The meeting was opened by Mrs. John Dunlap, Jr., who presided during the business meeting. Miss Carolyn Bohard, secretary, read her monthly report and Mrs. C. W. Hays reported as treasurer. Reports were made also by Mrs. Charles Smiley, chairman of the courtesy committee; Mrs. D. H. Marcy, scrapbook chairman and historian. In the absence of Mrs. Walter Wright, honor roll tablet chairman, Mrs. J. S. Varney read her report concerning the flag which is to be purchased and erected in the village park. The Williamsport Boy Scouts are joining in this project.

Two short talks, "What to do in your Garden this Month", were presented by Mrs. Jesse Rose and Mrs. Mont Vorhees.

During the social hour, delicious refreshments of cake, nuts, coffee and tea, were served by Mrs. Heiskell. Assisting hostesses for the evening were Mrs. Charles Rose, Mrs. George LeMay, Mrs. Marcy, Mrs. H. D. Gamble, Mrs. Edward C. Rector and Mrs. C. K. Hunsicker.

Plans for the next meeting, March 2, include a covered dish supper for members and families at the parish house at 6:30 p. m.

Mrs. Andrew Schwartz will be chairman of the hospital committee. Leslie Pontius of West High street will be guest speaker. His subject will be "Flower Pictures."

Methodist W. S. C. S.
The Woman's Society for Christian Service of the Methodist church met in regular session in the church parlor Thursday with Mrs. G. H. Adkins presiding. Mrs. C. R. Barnhart conducted the devotional service and Mrs. Charles Fullen presented the program. Mrs. Barnhart used as her topic, "God's Truth Abides Still." The opening hymn, "Ariel", sung by the group, was followed by prayer. Other hymns were sung with Miss Estella Grimes as piano accompanist. A prayer read by Mrs. Barnhart closed the devotional period.

Mrs. L. S. Lytle, secretary, and Mrs. Fremont L. Mangum, treasurer, gave their respective reports. Plans for the services and covered dish dinners which will be held in the church basement each Wednesday evening during Lent were discussed. The Rev. Clarence Swearingin gave a timely message to the group and urged all members to come to these Lenten meetings.

A very interesting paper was read by Mrs. Fullen, titled "Black Rhythms of the Light." This told of the ardent evangelistic work done by a converted native of Congo-Africa among his fellow natives. The hymn, "Assurance", was sung to close the meeting.

Golden Wedding Anniversary
Mr. and Mrs. Edward Gerhardt of Church street, New Holland, will observe their Golden Wedding anniversary Sunday, February 6, at their home. They were married in 1894 by the Rev. J. H. Schneider, pastor of Trinity Lutheran church, at his home in Circleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerhardt have been residents of the New Holland community for many years, having resided on their farm, north of the village, until September 1942, when they sold it and moved to New Holland. Mr. Gerhardt is 78 years old and Mrs. Gerhardt, 72. They have three daughters, Mrs. Wilbur Altemang, north of New Holland; Mrs. Webster R. Russell, Wooster; and Mrs. Alvin R. Williams of Cleveland, who is now living in California while her husband, Captain Williams, is stationed at Camp San Luis Obispo. There are five grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerhardt have many relatives and friends in Circleville.

U. B. Missionary Society
Annual Thankoffering meeting of the Women's Missionary society of the United Brethren church met Thursday in the community house with Miss Gladys Noggle in charge of the devotional service and the short business session. It was announced that the annual study class would be February 24 at the home of Mrs. Myrtle Trimmer, East Franklin street. The Branch convention will be in the Washington avenue United

Stylish New Peplum

Navy crepe and navy taffeta worked lattice fashion for gilet and peplum make this trim frock for sunny weather wear this Spring.

THE American designer who created this spring-time frock is outstanding for her success with navy blue especially... and this is a navy blue model.

Made with pencil slimmness, the skirt has plenty of spring and width concealed in its skillful cut, and the blouse top is treated to becoming softness which escapes baggy fullness.

A high gilet under the deep V neckline, a slightly flared, short peplum from belt to hipline, are made of matching navy blue taffeta cords woven lattice fashion. This is a dandy dress for accessories of Spring, either the flowery or the starkly severe varieties.

Jesus Feeds the Multitudes

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
(The International Uniform Lesson for Feb. 6 is Mark 6:30-52, 8:1-10. The Golden Text being John 6:35, "I am the bread of life: he that cometh to Me shall not hunger, and he that believeth on Me shall never thirst.")

JOHN THE BAPTIST, you probably remember, was beheaded by Herod at the request of his stepdaughter, who had pleased him by her dancing. Herodias, her mother, was responsible for this cruel request. The mother was angry with John for his outspoken disapproval of her marriage to Herod, her first husband's brother.

When the disciples heard about John's death, they came to Jesus to tell Him about it. Jesus saw that His disciples were tired and overwrought, and He suggested that they find a desert place in which to rest.

They took ship from this place, but crowds of people saw them go and as many knew Him, they ran on foot and came to where Jesus and the disciples disembarked. When Jesus saw these people and how much they needed a leader, he was sorry for them "because they were as sheep not having a shepherd: and He began to teach them many things."

Question of Food
As evening came, the disciples came to Jesus and asked if they should send the multitude away, to buy themselves food in the villages, for they had nothing to eat. Jesus said, "Give ye them to eat." The disciples could not see how this could be done. "Shall we go buy two hundred pennyworth of bread, and give them to eat?" they asked, knowing that they had not that much money.

Then Jesus asked how many loaves they had; five, they said, and two fishes. Jesus commanded them to make all the people sit down by companies upon the grass, and He took the loaves and fishes, looked up to heaven, and blessed and brake the loaves and gave them to the disciples, and all that multitude of 5,000 souls was filled and there were 12 baskets left.

After this miracle Jesus directed the disciples to get into a ship to go to the opposite shore, and He sent the people away and departed to a mountain to pray. Coming to the shore some time later, He beheld His disciples rowing hard against a strong wind and worn out with the labor.

"About the fourth watch of the night He cometh unto them, walking upon the sea and would have passed them." When they saw

GEHRIG'S NAME STAYS TO TOP OF HONOR LIST

NEW YORK, Feb. 4—With a total of 2,596 votes, the late Lou Gehrig, one of baseball's most brilliant names, continued to lead the popularity contest of the sports War Bond committee today.

Gehrig has been leading the list of sports favorites since the beginning of the poll three weeks ago. Each vote represents a $25 war bond.

Ward Cuff, backfield star of the football Giants, with 1,629 votes and Babe Ruth with 1,242 were still in second and third places respectively.

The most startling upsurge was Mel Ott, Giant pilot, who moved into fourth place within the last forty-eight hours, bringing his total up to 1,174.

The contest, which has sold a total of $383,125 worth of bonds, to date continues to be dominated by baseball players.

Pickaway Five Declared Winner Of Overtime Battle With Atlanta

BULLETIN

John Hardin, Pickaway township school superintendent and coach, said Friday that H. R. Townsend, commissioner of high school athletics for Ohio, told him in a telephone conversation that Pickaway had won the cage game with Atlanta Thursday evening when Doyle Fouch, a substitute, scored his first of two baskets in the second overtime period.

Hardin said that Townsend told him the first overtime period must be of three minutes with the team leading at that time being the winner. In the second overtime, the team scoring the first two points is the victor. Fouch scored two field goals before Atlanta went ahead to win, apparently, 40 to 39.

Townsend told Hardin he would send him a letter declaring his team the winner.

Perry township cagers from Atlanta retained their clean slate in court competition Thursday night by winning a super-thriller 40 to 39 in two overtime periods from a fighting Pickaway township team. The game was played before a full house on the Pickaway court.

Pickaway held a six point lead with less than two minutes to play, but loss of Dunkle and Rhoades via the personal foul route spelled doom, Perry tying it up and then going on to win.

The regulation tilt ended 33-33. Bill Hobbie getting the bucket that deadlocked the contest.

The first overtime saw each team scoring two points, McGinnis hitting for Pickaway and Bill Hobbie for Perry.

In the second overtime, Fouch came through with two buckets for Pickaway to make it 39-35 before Earl picked up a foul point.

R. Hobbie hit a goal and then came through with another action peg to put his team ahead 40-39. A Pickaway lad had a chance to tie the encounter with a free throw, but missed it.

Pickaway reserves gained an 18 to 16 decision, while Pickaway eighth graders won 42-25 from Charlie Glitt's Emery club kids.

DUROCHER GIVEN OKEH FOR TRIP BY HIS BOSS

NEW YORK, Feb. 4—Leo Durocher, the Brooklyn Dodger boss who is awaiting governmental okay for an overseas jaunt to entertain servicemen, had one less worry today—Branch Rickey, the frontoffice boss, has given him his blessing to make the trip.

Rickey also disclosed that in the event Durocher won't be able to return in time to handle the Spring training routine, Coach Chuck Dressen will be called on to handle the reins temporarily. Durocher is now entertaining service personnel at Camp MacDill, near Tampa, Fla.

Sapphires once were thought to have curative powers. In the 13th century a large sapphire, believed to be effective in aiding weak eyes, was presented to St. Paul's cathedral, London.

DARBY, SCIOTO TEAMS TO OPEN COURT TOURNEY.

First Game Will Be On At 7 P. M. Friday, February 18

SEEDING IS APPROVED

Ashville, Atlanta Cannot Meet Before Final Day's Card

Darby and Scioto township cage teams will take the lid off the annual Pickaway county tournament Friday, February 18, at 7 p. m.

Drawing were made Thursday at the meeting of county superintendents.

After much debate it was decided to seed outstanding teams, Ashville and Atlanta being put in different brackets to prevent their meeting prior to the finals. No. 3 seeded spot went to Pickaway township, and in a draw for the fourth seeded position, Walnut township was the winner.

The tournament will be staged in four sessions, February 18, 19, 25 and 26.

John Hardin, Pickaway superintendent, is manager of the tournament. He has employed Art Buchanan and Dale Rose of Columbus as officials.

Other first night games in the tournament will include: Williamsport vs. Monroe at 8 p. m.; Jackson vs. Washington at 9 p. m. and Saltcreek vs. New Holland at 10 p. m.

THEN SHOOT THE WORKS

WHEN YOU CAN'T see any way to make your contract except by finding several suits divided in unlikely ways in the hands of your opponents, the only thing for the plucky declarer to do is "shoot the works." Go after exactly the break you need if you don't get it, at least you have the satisfaction of having tried. And if it does work out as you hoped--oh, boy! isn't that a grand and glorious feeling?

You have shared laughs with us at "Saro" cartoons, but have you ever seen the artistry of their creator, Don Komisarow, exemplified at the bridge table? It was really pretty to see him do his stuff and make his contract with that doubtful trump suit.

After West led the diamond K and switched to the club 8, he could find only one hopeful way to bring in the bacon. That necessitated getting an even break of the outstanding cards in two suits, spades and diamonds. None dismayed, he went for it.

Taking the second trick with the club A, he began work to set up three diamonds, ruffing the 4 with the spade 5. To the dummy he went with the spade 7 to the J and ruffed the diamond 6 with the spade Q. The desired three diamonds were now established, so he was ready to try to dispose of the remaining four hostile spades. The K removed two of them. To dummy he went then with the club Q to the K and played the spade A. When both defenders had to follow suit, he knew he was safely home. On that trick he put one heart, and the three diamonds accounted for the others. He finished the hand by leading the club 3 to the J and 10.

STERE-MERIVALE

The "What's New" family with Leonard Warren, Celeste Holm and Cy Howard will invite Metropolitan Opera Soprano Eleanor Steber, the stars from the new stage show "Duke in Darkness," Philip Merivale, Edgar Stehl, Louis Hector, Raymond Burr; and the singing King Sisters, as their guests for the program to be heard Saturday, at 8 p. m. over the Blue network.

Special guest of the evening will be Joseph C. Grew, former United States ambassador to Japan, and now assistant secretary of the state. Mr. Grew will speak from Washington.

Among the younger Metropolitan singers today Eleanor Steber is one of the most outstanding. Miss Steber has just returned from a USO tour and is acclaimed as one of the servicemen's favorite artists. During her appearance at Fort McPherson, Georgia, she was given the title of Honorary Colonel. Miss Steber was a winner of the Metropolitan Opera Auditions of the Air in 1940 and made her debut in "Der Rosenkavalier."

Last week "The Duke in Darkness," a melodrama written by Patrick Hamilton, who authored the popular "Angel Street," made its bow on Broadway. "What's New?" will present an excerpt from the suspense play with its stars Philip Merivale, who portrays the Duke, Edgar Stehl, Louis Hector and Raymond Burr.

"LIFE OF RILEY"

An irresistible force (the Riley) meets a set of apparently immovable objects (the furniture), when moving day dawns in William Bendix's comedy series, "The Life of Riley," on Sunday at 2 p. m. over NBC. The Rileys can get into the house they've rented only when the previous tenants move out. . . and the previous tenants are waiting for someone else to move out of their new home. Participating in the problems are Riley (Bendix), his wife (Paula Winslowe), Junior (Conrad Binyon) and the inevitable Uncle Baxter (Hans Conried).

"TAKE IT OR LEAVE IT"

The WAVES, sailors and Marines (female), who are in training at Hunter College, will be able to take their minds off their studies for a while--and make some money, too--when Phil Baker brings his "Take It Or Leave It" show to the campus on Sunday, February 13, at 9 p. m. over WBNS.

MR. DISTRICT ATTORNEY

"Mr. District Attorney" pulls no punches against racketeers, who prey for profit on the loved ones of the dead, in "The Case of the Graveyard Swindle" on Wednesday at 8:30 p. m. over WLW.

Charlene is quite versatile. She is able to do eight different dialects and can disguise her voice to do any one of 17 assorted characterizations.

Morton Gould, composer-conductor star of the CBS "Carnival," Wednesdays at 9:30 p. m., is sponsoring a "Salute to 'Fats' Waller" concert, which will be held at Carnegie Hall on April 2. Other sponsors include Benny Goodman, "Duke" Ellington, Lionel Hampton and more top-notch musicians have promised to lend their time and talents to the memorial.

Latest addition to the cast of "The Chamber Music Society of Lower Basin Street" is young Jackie Grimes, who plays belligerent "Freddie MacGruder." He's also starring in the title role of "Archie Andrews," MBS weekday series.

Selections by Bach, Beethoven and Brahms will predominate when Dr. Frank Black is guest conductor with the Cleveland Symphony Orchestra over MBS Sunday, February 6.

Schools To Play Leading Role In Waste Paper Salvage

CRITICAL NEED CITED AT MEET OF EDUCATORS

Speakers To Tell Youths How Material Aids In Beating Axis

CAMPAIGN DATES SET

Rural Districts Arrange For February And March Collection Period

An intensified effort to salvage waste paper in the Pickaway county district is being organized by local and state salvage officials with the first step in the expanded campaign to be taken the last two days in February and the first few days in March in all schools of the Pickaway county rural school system.

Arrangements for the drive were made Thursday afternoon when Dan McClain, Pickaway county salvage chairman; John Dexter, of the state salvage division, and Lee Maxwell, recently assigned to the scrap paper division, met with Pickaway county school superintendents in the office of Superintendent George D. McDowell.

The salvage officials outlined the need for scrap paper, and received a wholehearted pledge from the educators that assistance would be provided.

Schedule Arranged
Mr. Maxwell will set up a schedule, working with the county school office, for a visit to each school in the county so that the need for scrap paper can be stressed.

The educators were told Thursday that scrap paper is now the nation's No. 1 critical waste material, and that collections must be boosted from 500,000 to at least 667,000 tons a month. Shut down of many paper mills might follow with a resulting shortage of paper products that would seriously retard the war effort, the superintendents were informed.

"It would appear impossible to overstate the nation's need for waste paper," Mr. Maxwell told the school heads. "In the face of steadily mounting usage of paper products in the war effort, due to its status as a practical substitute for steel and other critical materials, the paper industry faces a shortage of virgin pulp, caused by lack of manpower and transportation facilities. The only answer is more and more waste paper."

Needed for Victory
Paper is used to produce bomb bands, powder kegs, ammunition chests, fuel tank linings, ration kits and cartons of all descriptions for the shipping of materials overseas.

Householders are urged to assist in the campaign by properly bundling newspapers, magazines and cartons which they wish collectors to pick up.
According to the plan outlined to the superintendents, Circleville will not participate in the February-March campaign. The county seat conducted a drive a little over a week ago in which a large supply of waste paper was salvaged.

Need for more salvaged paper is being stressed by the Container Corporation of America plant here which cannot operate unless waste paper continues to pour into the factory.

Mr. McClain reminded Circleville housewives Friday that a tin can salvage program will be conducted next Wednesday in Circleville with the service department joining in the drive. All tin cans

More County Men Leave For Pre-Induction Test Of Physical Fitness

A pre-induction contingent of Pickaway county selective service registrants went to Columbus Friday for physical examinations which will determine whether they should be put on draft lists as available for calls into service.

All the men will return home as civilians, including those informed by army medical team members that they are physically fit for service. They will be subject to call in 21 days, notices for reporting to be sent from the local draft office.

This contingent is the second one sent away for pre-induction tests, the other, a much smaller one, going to Huntington, W. Va. Men found acceptable in this group have not yet received their notices to report for assignment and classification at an army station.

Included in Friday's contingent were:

ONE MINUTE PULPIT
The Lord is gracious, and full of compassion; slow to anger, and of great mercy.—Psalms 144:8.

Funeral services were held Monday in Waynesfield, O., for Mrs. E. Benjamin Yale, 59, step-mother of Carl Yale, formerly of Circleville. Mrs. Yale died Saturday in Lima hospital. Carl Yale is in the air corps serving in the South.

H. M. Waites has given up his job as janitor at the Heffner Grain Co. offices after seven years. Mr. Waites resigned because of ill health.

The Eagles Lodge is sponsoring a games party at the home on East Main street, Friday night, starting at 8:30. Everyone invited.

Miss Helen Betts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred C. Betts of Williamsport, has been made supervisor of the personnel department of the U. S. Employment office in Cleveland. Miss Betts has been working in the Cleveland office for more than a year.

Ray W. Davis, Montclair avenue, will discuss the life of Lincoln at the Kiwanis club Monday at 8:30 p. m. The club meets at Hanley's.

There will be a 50-50 dance, Saturday night from 9 to 12 at the Eagles Home. It is open to the public.

Rotary club members enjoyed color movies of pre-war fishing in Minnesota Thursday when R. L. Brehmer, North Court street, conducted the program at Pickaway Arms. The movies proved entertaining to the club members.

Dr. B. R. Bales is slowly recovering at his home on West Main street after a severe attack of influenza.

Mrs. John Bolender of Beverly road underwent a major operation Thursday in St. Anthony hospital, Taylor avenue, Columbus. Mrs. Bolender is in Room 114.

Mrs. Thomas Wright of Jackson township is in Cincinnati where her two daughter, Sara Jane and Suzanne, are patients in Children's hospital for observation and treatment. Mrs. B. H. Rader of Pickaway township, Mrs. Wright's mother, is showing improvement at her home after a serious illness.

must be properly cleaned and crushed.

The salvage chief said also that waste paper will be accepted by service department truck operators if the paper, magazines and cartons are properly bundled and tied.

Importance of the tin can and paper salvage programs have been stressed at various times by industry and by salvage officials.

ARMY TO TAKE CUSTODY OF GUN-TOTING CORPORAL

Fort Hayes army post military police are expected to come to Circleville Friday to remove Corporal Raymond Azbell, 21, of Lancaster and Fort Bliss, Texas, to the military reservation. Azbell has been held in city jail since 1:30 a. m. Thursday after he pulled a .32 caliber revolver on Emmanuel Hundley, York street, in a West Main street establishment. Azbell was irked, police said, when Hundley danced with a girl friend.

The soldier ran when police were called and tossed his pistol on a shed roof where it was found Thursday morning.

Azbell, who is in an anti-aircraft outfit at Fort Bliss, was home on an emergency pass, but was due back at Fort Bliss Wednesday the day before he was arrested in Circleville.

STATE AIDES LEAVING

Saturday is the last day for Circleville and Pickaway county income taxpayers to receive assistance from state Bureau of Internal Revenue officials who have been at the postoffice all this week. The two state men assigned here have been kept busy since their arrival.

SCHOOL CHILDREN BUY $1,049 IN WAR STAMPS

Circleville school children are continuing to do a fine job for Uncle Sam. Wednesday is stamp and bond day each week in the school system, and youngsters in the various buildings bought a total of $1,049.20 in bonds and stamps this week.

The purchases help to send the Fourth War Loan campaign toward its goal of $1,244,000.

During the month of January the city's school children bought $3,062.90 worth of stamps and bonds.

G. O. P. Solon Suggests Backing Promotions, Gaining Army Votes

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—It never leaked out of the recent Senate Republican caucus, but Senator Chan Gurney of South Dakota dropped a boomerang idea for corraling Republican votes in the U. S. Army.

Fellow Republican Senators didn't go for Gurney's brain-storm, partly because they thought it played down the same alley as the Harrison Spangler boner when he announced that he had had a poll made by Army officers in England which he claimed showed they were against Roosevelt.

Gurney stood up in caucus to warn Republicans that Democratic Senators on the Military Affairs Committee, among them Kilgore of West Virginia, Wallgren of Washington, and Truman of Missouri, were determined to block the permanent promotions of General Patton and General Somervell.

Both generals have been severely criticized, the first for slapping a sick soldier in a Sicilian hospital, the second for spending millions of the American taxpayers' dollars on the controversial pipe line through the Arctic wastes from Canada to Alaska. Nevertheless, the Army has recommended both men for permanent promotion to the rank of major-general.

In view of this, Democratic members of the Military Affairs Committee proposed that, because the Army tried to rush through promotions, all permanent promotions be held up until the war is over, when they can be scrutinized carefully, and those who really deserve reward can be promoted.

Gurney, after telling his Republican colleagues about Democratic opposition to permanent promotions, said:

"This is a real opportunity for the Republicans to win the soldiers' vote, if we come out for it. It calls for united action on the part of all Republican Senators. And if we stick together, we can put through these promotions."

Note—What Senator Gurney didn't seem to appreciate, however, is that it's the vote of the enlisted men that really counts. And political sharps believe the men's vote is generally opposite to that of officers.

GRACIOUS LEO CROWLEY
One matter which long has worried the British is agitation by American peace societies to get food into occupied Europe. The British fear that this food would be smuggled out to relieve Germany, and so far President Roosevelt and the State Department have vigorously supported them.

The other day, however, the British Minister of Economic Warfare was disturbed by reports that Leo Crowley, Foreign Economic Administrator, was under pressure to change this policy and send food to occupied France, Holland, Belgium. So a representative of the Ministry went to see William Stone, an aide to Crowley. After he'd expressed his fears to Stone and the arguments against sending food to occupied Europe, Stone suggested that they go in to see Crowley himself.

Crowley was most gracious, but rather confused the Britisher when he said:

"Let's just sit right down around the table and talk this over. We're partners in this war, and if you want those food shipments to go through, we'll fix it up no matter what it costs us."

LOVE LOVES LOVELY PROFITS
Hard-hitting Chester Bowles, OPA Administrator, has written a scorching letter of Donald Nelson, protesting against what some people consider sabotage inside the War Production Board against the OPA and its effort to prevent inflation.

Bowles' letter was directed specifically against Spencer Love, head of the Burlington Mills in Greensboro, N. C., now serving as

MOTHER GOES TO VISIT MARINE WHO IS AT HOME

One of the sad stories that usually accompany embarkation of troops to any war theatre took place in Circleville and at Camp LeJeune, New River, N. C. this week.

Mrs. Vere Thomas of Circleville had learned that her son, Sergeant Irvin Thomas of the Marine Corps, was about to be transferred from New River, either to another post or into a war theatre. He would have informed her that he would probably not be permitted a leave prior to his assignment to a new area.

So Mrs. Thomas arranged transportation and left for New River to visit her son.

In the meantime, young Thomas was granted a surprise five day leave to visit his parents.

While the youth was traveling to Circleville, his mother was on the way to Camp LeJeune. When she arrived at the Marine base, Sergeant Thomas arrived at home.

Now it is likely that neither will be able to visit the other before the transfer takes place.

FOX DRIVE SATURDAY TO GET UNDER WAY AT 10:30

Saturday's fox drive in Pickaway township district will get under way at 10:30 a. m. with all interested persons asked to gather at the school building from which point the drive will be formed. Men and youths taking part are permitted to take shotguns, and they must also carry 1943 hunting licenses which are still good. There is reported to be a large number of foxes in Pickaway township.

DURWARD DOWDEN: "Unless things are developing of which I have no knowledge we will still be fighting in Europe a year from now."

'LUCK OF LONDON'

PITTSBURGH, Pa.—The chain letter craze is reported back again in Pittsburgh. But in place of the grandiose promises of cash which the original letters held, the current form offers "The Luck of London," a special dispensation which may appear in any form. It was said to have been originated in London by an American army officer. A letter received by Mrs. Catherine Rolewski directed her to "send the letter and four copies to people whom you wish good luck."

Officer at Fort Meade, Maryland:—You may not be aware of it, but there are 3,000 men at your post, every one a trained parachute trooper, all depressed and disheartened because they have lost their "jump status" while waiting to be sent overseas.

These men will be among the shock troops of the European invasion force. They take pride in their status as parachute jumpers. But for some strange reason, the War Department is trying to economize on these men by depriving them temporarily of the extra pay they receive as jumpers—$50 a month for enlisted men and $100 for officers.

It is not the cut in pay which disheartens them so much as their loss of standing. To remove a man's jump status is like taking the wings from an aviator.

NEWS OF OUR MEN and WOMEN IN UNIFORM

Sergeant Robert Bowsher, formerly of Circleville, was a visitor here Thursday while enjoying a five day pass from his station at Fort McClelland, Ala. He is spending most of his time with his mother, Mrs. Nellie Bowsher, Columbus. Bowsher reports that Johnny George, also a Circleville man, is now in England. George is a technical sergeant.

Lieutenant Robert Balthaser, who has spent a few days' leave with his parents in Walnut township, has been assigned to the quartermaster army service forces depot at Memphis, Tenn.

John R. Hunt of the U. S. Navy will observe his eighteenth birthday anniversary February 17. Mail reaches him if addressed: John R. Hunt, apprentice seaman, U. S. N. T. S., Company 187, Great Lakes, Ill.

Address of Technical Sergeant Herman R. Petty, ASN 35402138, of Ashville, is APO 528, care of postmaster, New York, N. Y. Petty is in the signal section of the air force service command.

Richard G. Binkley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harley Binkley, 444 East Union street, has completed his basic training at the submarine school, New London, Conn., and is now ready for sea duty. Binkley is entitled to wear the twin dolphin insignia of the submarine service. Young Binkley was graduated from CHS in June, 1942. He entered the navy last March and received his boot training at Great Lakes.

NEW RULE APPLIES ON RATION CERTIFICATES

Persons applying to the Pickaway county war price and rationing office for gasoline ration certificates of purchase for any rationed goods, or for anything else that the OPA office dispenses were informed Friday that no more over-the-counter deliveries are permitted under new regulations.

Harry B. Welch, chief clerk of the office, said Friday that the regulation ordering the office to make all deliveries of coupons and certificates for purchase of rationed goods by mail is effective now.

Applications may be filed with the clerks at the rationing office, but no one is permitted under the new rules to receive his coupons or certificates over the counter at the ration office.

The policy is adopted to save time in the ration office.

HEAVIER BUTCHER HOGS GAIN PRICE SUPPORT

A. A. A. office was informed Friday by the War Food administration that a temporary emergency extension of the price support program to include good and choice butcher hogs weighing from 300 to 330 pounds has been granted. The action was taken, the A. A. A. office was told, to protect hog growers who are unable to market at present, and have therefore been forced to feed above 300 pounds, the previous upper weight limit in the price support program.

W. F. A. told the local office that it is hoped that the temporary increase in the price support limits will encourage more orderly marketing and help relieve market congestion.

Farmers owning hogs of less than 200 pounds are being urged to keep them off the market until congestion has been relieved.

FILES CROSS PETITION

Mrs. Martha L. Ankrom of Circleville filed an answer and cross petition Thursday in common pleas court against the divorce action brought by her husband, Merle K. Ankrom. Mr. Ankrom, who is home on furlough from an army camp, charged his wife with neglect of duty, Mrs. Ankrom's petition claiming extreme cruelty.

A restraining order was granted by Judge Meeker Terwilliger to prevent the husband from molesting Mrs. Ankrom or her mother, Mrs. Martha Garvey. Mrs. Ankrom is a minor of 19. The couple has a daughter.

Seniors Continue To Pace Fellow Pupils In Scholastic Attainment

Circleville high school senior students continue to pace their fellow pupils in scholastic attainment during the present term. The third six weeks' honor roll lists 17 seniors, 12 juniors, 12 sophomores and 11 freshmen.

The honor roll is led by a junior and sophomore, however, who have five A's on their cards. They are Carrie Arledge, junior, and Ann Snider, sophomore.

ANNIHILATION OF JAPS PROCEEDS IN MARSHALLS

Sea And Air Barrage Aid Yanks Whose Loss Ratio Is One To 46

Kwajalein counterattacked the night of February 1-2, but were "dispersed with heavy losses to the enemy."

At dawn the next day, the spokesmen said, soldiers of the Seventh reopened their attacks and continued to make "satisfactory progress."

Few Prisoners

Their backs to the sea and all hope of escape in that direction cut off by salvos from America's mighty armada, it was apparent that the shattered Jap garrison of Kwajalein faces capture or death. Early crushing of the last enemy resistance was expected to be announced hourly.

Only a few Jap prisoners have been taken. Almost crazed by the terrific shelling and bombing, including high explosive from artillery the Seventh hauled into position on small islets flanking Kwajalein, these were reported to have expressed their belief Japan has already lost the war.

With Kwajalein island in American hands and Marines pushing down from the north, the doom of the entire key atoll is assured. Its possession would give the invaders at least two big airfields and strong bases for an assault against the rest of the Marshall chain.

The Leathernecks, who seized Roi at the outer fringe of the 655-mile square atoll, took adjoining Namur island soon thereafter and came into possession of the triple-runway airfield to cover their position and to be used as a striking base in further operations.

Light Marine Losses

Capture of the Roi-Namur sector and the four islets of Gagan, Edjell, Dubu and Edgijon, cost the Marines 100 dead and less than 400 wounded. There was no estimate available of enemy losses in that area nor indication of strength of the initial garrison.

The airfield on Kwajalein, not yet used by the Japs as far as is known, will also be used by American planes once it can be put in condition.

As Kwajalein island is the key to the atoll bearing that name, so is the atoll the key to possession of the Marshalls. Initial landings at opposite ends of the atoll, following a sea and air pounding that reduced to rubble the defenses the Japs have spent 20 years and millions of yen in perfecting, came as a complete surprise.

By-passing eastern defenses of the chain such as Wotje and Maleolap, as Kiska in the Aleutians was by-passed to take Attu, army troops and Marines struck where they were least expected and sliced directly at the heart of Nippon's eastern wall.

In view of Admiral Nimitz's initial communique on the invasion setting the goal, as "the capture of the Marshall Islands," it was apparent that once Kwajalein falls moves against other atolls in the chain will not be long in coming.

America Moves Ahead

Success in that action would move America's Pacific defenses from Pearl Harbor more than 2,000 miles to the west and give our forces a striking base against Truk, 1,046 miles westward, the Philippines and Japan itself.

While there was no indication from Admiral Nimitz that the invading forces and their covering fleet have met opposition from enemy planes or submarines, American warcraft were still active.

Continuing their assaults against land objectives and other islands in the Marshall group, land and carrier based bombers with swarms of fighters hit at Jap bases and neutralized enemy airstrips with incessant bombing and strafing.

Record Battle

What opened as the biggest thing yet to explode in the Pacific, shaped up today as possibly the greatest battle of the global war.

Admiral Nimitz, in a communique last night, announced an attack by bombers of the Seventh army air force against a new Marshalls target and additional strikes against other bases in the chain.

Rongelap, approximately 125 miles northwest of Kwajalein, was raided Wednesday by Liberators which hammered ground installations with nearly eight tons of bombs.

Dauntless dive bombers on the same day dropped more than 13 tons of explosives on the airdrome and gun emplacements at Mille. Tuesday, navy reconnaissance planes hit a small enemy cargo vessel at Namu atoll and dropped a ton of bombs each on Wotje and Tarao at Maleolap.

Rongolap atoll, mentioned for the first time in navy communiqués, is virtually an unknown quantity.

At present, there is no information available as to the nature and size of the Jap base there. Neither was there any estimate given of the extent of damage done there.

Moderate anti-aircraft fire was encountered on both missions

BLAST VICTIM'S FUNERAL TO BE HELD SUNDAY

Funeral services will be held Sunday at 2:30 p. m. in the Stoutsville Lutheran church, the Rev. H. B. Drum officiating, for Robert M. Aldenderfer, 25, of 218 Watt street, who died at noon Thursday in the Lockbourne army air base hospital. Burns suffered Wednesday in an explosion in a shed at the base caused Mr. Aldenderfer's death.

The local man was the third to die as a result of injuries suffered in the explosion, others who lost their lives being George W. Hoffman, 31, of Carroll, and Willoughby E. McClure, 48, of Columbus.

All three lost their lives when a stove exploded in the shed where they had gone to change clothing which had been soaked by aviation gasoline they were transferring from a tank car to a tank at the base.

Another Circleville man, William Lake, narrowly escaped with his life. Lake was in the shed with the men when one of them suggested that he go to another shed to obtain a first aid kit. The gasoline was causing the men discomfort. A minute after Lake left the building, the explosion happened.

Mr. Aldenderfer is survived by his widow, Ruth Alice Hott Aldenderfer; two daughters, Eleanor, 4, and Patricia, 2; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clark Aldenderfer, 212 North Scioto street; his maternal grandmother, Mrs. Emma Smith, Amanda, and a brother, Harry L. The air base employee was a resident of Stoutsville most of his life, graduating from high school there in 1935.

The body will be removed to the home of his parents, North Scioto street, where friends may call after 7 p. m. Friday. Burial will be in Maple Hill cemetery, Stoutsville, by Crites and Van Cleave, Amanda.

DRAFTEE STARTS FOR EXAM, LANDS IN JAIL

Police have a customer on their hands, and they don't know just what to do with him.

The man was identified as Wilfred Phillips, 28, of Wellston.

Phillips was on his way to Columbus to appear before the army medical team for a pre-induction physical examination. The contingent's acting corporal and the bus driver hauling the group refused to go any farther with the man. He had been drinking, police were told, and was causing a disturbance on the bus.

Police agreed to take him off the bus, but what will become of him now is not clear.

SOVIET LEGIONS ADVANCE OVER PILES OF DEAD

Ukraine struggled to break out of the Russian ring, front dispatches said the Soviet tanks and artillery bit deeper into the pocket. In at least one sector, Junkers-52s were reported dropping supplies to troops in the "island," which covered some 1,000 square miles of frozen steppe and forest land.

On other fronts, meantime, additional Red Army columns threatened the Nazis with annihilation or entrapment.

Battle At Cassino

A bitter struggle between American assault forces and German defense units was in progress today for possession of Cassino, strongly fortified Nazi bastion on the Via Cassina 79 miles below Rome.

Yanks who previously made two sorties into the town to determine the German strength and were forced to retire again re-entered Cassino in greater strength.

Latest reports from the main Fifth Army front said that Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark's American infantrymen surged into Cassino to engage the Nazis in grueling street fighting. The Yanks forced their way from house to house to oust the Nazis from strongpoints.

One correspondent at the front described the new American assault as a deadly game of hide and seek, with the Americans having to fight their way almost from room to room.

The infantry poured down into Cassino from surrounding high ground after further preparation by American artillery and advanced behind armored forces.

Fierce Resistance

The Germans inside Cassino where every house has been turned into a virtual pillbox resisted fiercely and it was apparent that the Nazi high command had ordered its forces to hold out as long as possible despite the fact that the Gustav defense line already has been pierced above Cassino.

American and French units which scored the five-mile breakthrough northeast of Cassino were reported unofficially to have entered the mountain village of Terrile and also to have seized strategic Mount Castellone. These advancing units, pressing to the northwest, were swinging on an arc which would bring them in behind the Nazis at Cassino and threaten the German defenders with entrapment.

The fighting on several sectors of the main Fifth Army front was termed "hard" by the headquarters and stiff combat also was reported from some areas of the invasion beachhead south of Rome.

American and British forces remained locked with the Germans in tough fighting on the Cisterna and Campoleone sectors. The Yanks immediately below the Nazi-held capital battled to oust the Germans from Cisterna and gain control of the ancient Apennine Way at that point. The British around Campoleone, 10 miles to the north, were battling to achieve a breakthrough in the direction of Albano.

Allied bombers and fighter squadrons in England soared out over the continent in strength in daylight today to maintain the relentless bombardment of Nazi-held Europe.

The formations requiring 90 minutes to pass a given point over the southeast coast of England swept out toward Europe on the return of British Mosquito bombers which blasted objectives in western Germany for the third successive night.

BROTHERHOOD STAGES YEARLY GROUNDHOG MEET

Trinity Lutheran Brotherhood conducted its annual "groundhog" meeting Thursday evening, the session being a splendid one from standpoint of attendance and interest. A lunch of ice cream, cookies, doughnuts and coffee was served.

Music was provided by Robert Sproule, soloist, who sang "The Thief, Old Father Time" and "On the Road to Mandalay," Miss Anna Schleyer playing his accompaniment.

W. M. Reid spoke on the history of groundhog day, the annual groundhog election was held, and R. L. Brehmer evened some scores with Brotherhood members when he spoke on "The Groundhogs of Our Brotherhood." Carl C. Leist and George C. Griffith each read original poems. Songs were led by John W. Walters.

At the next meeting, John Cooper, Columbus attorney who is an authority on Lincoln, will speak. The meeting will be February 17. The Rev. E. H. E. Winterhoff will have charge of a Washington-Lincoln contest, and E. C. Ebert will have charge of patriotic music.

KURILES HIT

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—Another night bombing attack by American planes from the Aleutians against Japanese positions on Paramushiri in the Kuriles was announced today by the navy. The latest assault was carried out on the night of February 2-3 by two navy Catalinas, but results were not observed. No enemy planes were encountered and the U. S. bombers returned safely.

LODGE QUILTS SENATE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—Sir Henry Cabot Lodge (R) Mass., today resigned from the senate to return to duty in the army in which he holds the rank of major. He is 41 years old. Lodge announced his decision to return to active duty in a letter to the president of the senate.

went out the Nazi-operated Danish radio announced it was closing down "for military reasons." An official statement said that strong formations of American heavy bombers escorted by long-range fighters and supported by RAF and Allied craft had bombed targets in Western Germany.

Nazi raiders stabbed twice at London while the British night bombers were in action over the Reich.

Royal Air Force craft also laid mines in Nazi-controlled waters. None of the British craft was lost.

The two attempted strikes against the British capital came eight hours apart, one about 9 p. m. last night and the second at 5 a. m. this morning.

Four of the German raiders were knocked down over England and a fifth, a Junkers 188, was shot down as it sought to land at its home airdrome in France by a Canadian intruder plane.

CLERGY TAXED

NEW YORK—The puppet Philippine assembly has imposed a tax of 24 pesos of "professionals, priests and ministers of the gospel," according to the Tokyo radio, the FCC reported. The tax on the clergy was urged to give them "an opportunity to do their part in supporting the state," Tokyo explained.

beach defenses. The battle, however, became true French and Indian warfare—tree to tree, men flopping into the coral soil behind available protection when hidden enemy rifles and machineguns opened fire, then circling the flanking pocket of resistance and finally destroying it with grenades and bullets.

The effect of the bombardment can be appreciated only by seeing the destruction wrought on the islands of Roi and Namur, blockhouses terrifically battered, gun barrels of the coastal defenses twisted and shattered amidst debris and the dismembered bodies of their crews.

Island An Inferno

The entire island of Namur was transformed into an inferno. Neat rows of palm trees were mutilated and burned by shells and bombs. Tin-roofed barracks were crumpled and disintegrated. Sturdier buildings were burned, gutting themselves to their concrete framework.

The explosion of one blockhouse threw debris 3,000 feet into the air.

Tons of stores and supplies now are pouring ashore, and the Marines who destroyed enemy resistance in 24½ hours are unloading cargo from scores of landing craft.

The crowded beaches greatly resemble Coney Island on a hot Summer day. There is a display of newly-acquired loot—nearly every other man carries a bottle of sake wine or asahi beer. Other Marines captured officers' swords, knives and insignia and stared in awe at pornographic pictures, of which the Japanese seemed to have plenty.

Mostly the Marines are sleeping and eating, comparing experiences and wishing they could remove some of the rotting bodies from these islands.

They also are finding out who was killed or wounded. While U. S. casualties were very moderate, each one shot was hard to take.

Popular Officer Killed

They brought down the body of one of the most popular officers in the Marine corps yesterday afternoon. He leaped into battle, throwing grenades and firing a rifle, standing upright in a field of fire. A machine gun burst got him.

As his poncho-covered body came down a trail on a litter, one Marine told me:

"He was standing up when he got it."

The Marine looked at the corpse and muttered, "damn fool!"

There were tears in his eyes as he plodded on.

with plans for simplification of taxation. The house ways and means committee, aided by congressional tax experts, plans to begin work on simplification as soon as the tax bill is sent to the white house.

Despite reports that President Roosevelt might veto the new tax bill because it "freezes" social security taxes at present level, most congressional leaders expect him to sign it. They pointed out that while the President has complained about tax bills he has not vetoed one as yet.

colleagues, was still in the running. Said Taft:

"I think we have a good chance to win. When the authors of the Green-Lucas bill accepted the Danaher amendment they admitted the principle that a state ballot should be supplied over a federal ballot."

To Limit Ballot

"They agree to generally limit the federal ballot to overseas, so the only question is one of transportation and I think we can show that state ballots can be delivered overseas just as well as they can in the United States. I think acceptance of the Danaher amendment strengthens our arguments."

Lucas maintained that the Danaher amendment "does not do extreme violence" to his bill.

"It does have the element of states rights recognition but it is modified by provision that if a soldier in this country makes a statement that he has not obtained a state ballot he can vote the federal ballot."

House states rights advocates were jubilant over their victory. Rep. Vursell (R) Ill., one of those who had most hotly denounced President Roosevelt for his recent message terming the states rights legislation "a fraud upon the American people," said:

"The passage of the committee bill was a fine expression of courage by the members of the house, a great victory in the interest of the soldiers and for the constitutional government for which we are fighting."

"The proponents of the bill offered the motion to stand up and be counted. People have been given a message that constitutional government still lives and is growing stronger on Capitol Hill."

POLICE ACTIVE

Mid-week police court activity stepped up a little Thursday evening when three persons were taken into court. Garfield Stewart, 21, of Basil, was arrested on a warrant sworn out by Mrs. Mamie Ankrom, charging him with making threats; William Sark, 22, of Walnut street, a taxi driver, posted $3 bond after running a red traffic light at Scioto and Main streets, and Miles Bell, 156 Walnut street, posted $10 bond for intoxication.

clawed his way out and sat up. The Japs jabbed the prisoner viciously with bayonets. He was forced to kill the man with his shovel and then finish burying him."

Commander McCoy said the man who thus was driven to killing one of his buddies "never tried to excuse himself for going through with it."

"We all knew," he explained, "that a man crazed by thirst and hunger and already at the point of exhaustion is not a rational being. Automatic reflexes alone will cause him to hang onto his existence . . . he will do anything to stay alive."

Another case he cited was where the Japanese jammed the prisoners into a warehouse, which had little ventilation and no sanitation facilities. As a result, many of the American and Filipino soldiers died during the night.

He said that he and his nine companions decided to try the escape attempt, despite the horrible penalty they knew would face them if caught, because "if we stayed the odds were against us getting out alive."

ment did not close the door to further discussion of the problem, and Moscow is giving an attentive ear to Washington's views as outlined by American Ambassador W. Averell Harriman.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull and his associates also have been giving active consideration to the views of the Polish refugee government in London. The Poles would like the United States as well as Great Britain to guarantee any settlement which a free Poland might make with Russia.

The Poles further would like some expression of opinion from the American government concerning its attitude toward the possibility of Poland acquiring East Prussia and other German territory as compensation for the probable loss to Russia of most of its prewar eastern territories.

The possibility of a change in the Polish government to remove those members considered particularly objectionable by Moscow also has been the subject of discussion. According to one report current in diplomatic circles, Moscow would like to have two or three members of the pro-Soviet Union of Polish patriots organization included in the Polish government in London.

OPEN LETTERS

TO COUNCILMEN
OFFICIALS: Railroads have a mighty tough job on their hands. They are carrying the nation's war materials, and they are suffering from manpower shortages, too. But these facts do not contain any excuse for the condition of Circleville's crossings. They are in terrible condition. Since council has instituted action which may force one of the roads to correct its crossing condition, I am of the opinion that the railroad will probably tell the city to go ahead and do the work and that the utility will make proper payment. This can be done, and it should be done.

CIRCUITEER.

TO DAIRY FARMERS
PRODUCERS: You men are doing a real job for Uncle Sam's fighting men by producing thousands of pounds of milk and butterfat. Taking into consideration that this county is not considered an outstanding dairy district, you have done quite well in the last checking period—the last quarter of 1943. Nearly 4,000,000 pounds of milk and nearly 30,000 pounds of butterfat came from your farms. The money you are earning is not nearly so huge as the amount of goods you are producing, but you are doing your best to feed the nation, its men in service and to help the government care for its lend-lease obligations.

CIRCUITEER.

TO CIVIC CLUBS
ALL: Circleville's system of house numbers is in a terrible state of affairs, and just what can be done about it I do not know. Some service club might take it on itself to contact the postoffice department and try to work out a revision plan wherein the numbers would at least be in order. On many homes numbers are missing completely; in other places they are terribly out of order. More efficient mail service might be provided if the numbers were corrected. There are several Circleville streets which are also without names, at least motorists trying to find certain streets are unable to do so. This system might be corrected, too.

CIRCUITEER.

TO SALT CREEK GRANGE
RURAL FRIENDS: You people are making a splendid gesture by voting to appear en masse at the next visit of the Red Cross mobile unit blood bank to contribute your blood to help save the lives of wounded men in service. I can't thank you too much for deciding to take this action. Your blood is needed, and so is that of thousands of others. Many men will be wounded,

Inside WASHINGTON

By HELEN ESSARY
Central Press Columnist
WASHINGTON—And now I hear that the rush of foreign correspondents for seats at the not too far away Democratic national convention in Chicago is embarrassing the White House. Chicago is definitely the middle west. More, it is the center of America for many Americans.
However agreed the delegates to the convention may be as to the importance of supporting President Roosevelt, the convention as a whole will have to take an America-for-Americans policy. If too many strange writers pop into the convention picture, the convention may give the appearance of being for most any part of the foreign world except the United States. Correspondents from as far away as China, Australia, the remote Latin Americas, uncertain France, South Africa, New Zealand—men and women representing all areas not Axis—are now pushing hard for seats at Chicago.
Here is an international complication which the Republicans may turn to their own use.
• • • • •
WHILE WE ARE TALKING about journalistic attitudes—there are many people in Washington who believe that the president is now engaged in tapering the White House press conferences down to nothing at all. Many recent White House press conferences have been skipped for one reason or another. Even the least-knowing Washington writer wonders what this presidential withdrawal means. Surely it must be a compass that indicates conferences are over for the duration.
Woodrow Wilson, whose path Franklin Roosevelt seems to be following in a somewhat enlarged way, suspended his press conferences during the second year of World War I. He said "issues" had arisen upon which he could not speak "even informally and without quotation."
Wilson's successor, Warren Harding, revived the press conferences immediately after his inauguration. President Coolidge followed Harding's lead the day he returned from the Harding funeral.

CIRCUITEER.

TO SPORTSMEN
FELLOWS: The little fox, and he is cunning, too, will be sought Saturday morning starting at 10:30, and the Pickaway township school will be the gathering place. There are lots of foxes in Pickaway township and the drive should provide much sport. You are permitted to take shotguns, and you must be carrying licenses. The license you used to take rabbits and pheasants is still good. Proceeds of the auction after the hunt will go to Red Cross. You'll have a good time, destructive fox will be destroyed, and a worthy cause will benefit. What more could you ask?

CIRCUITEER.

TO CHAMBER OF COMMERCE
SIRS: Your annual meeting was a great success from almost any angle. The address was interesting, the spirit of fellowship prevailing was outstanding, the report of the secretary on the year's activities was splendid, and the food served by the ladies of the Presbyterian church was excellent. The value of the Chamber has been proven many times over.

CIRCUITEER.

TO BOOK READERS
FOLK: I was pleased to read that so many of you have started to read books on history. How would you like to study history 15 years from now? What a book historians will be able to write. It is fitting that history should be read; stories by men coming from war theatres are always interesting, and they provide much information.

CIRCUITEER.

TO HOUSEWIVES
WOMEN: A tin can salvage program is coming up next week in Circleville, and on your shoulders rests its success. The drive is scheduled Wednesday, with service department men to collect cans at homes which have them ready to be picked up. The cans must be cleaned and properly crushed, or they will not be picked up. Uncle Sam still needs tin and this is the best way he can obtain it. There are thousands of tin cans all ready to be picked up, so service department trucks should not have any trouble making a clean up.

CIRCUITEER.

TO GRAND AND CLIFTONA
THEATRES: Thanks to Circleville's theatres the March of Dimes campaign here was a marked success. The Grand and Cliftona did a swell job of taking collections, and their patrons did nicely, too, by putting their money in containers when they were passed. That $715.57 could be collected is splendid, and a great big orchid is yours.

CIRCUITEER.

TO POLICE DEPARTMENT
OFFICERS: You fellows did a mighty sweet piece of work last week in grabbing two youths who were wanted for armed robbery in Chillicothe. The whole story of the captures is a story of cooperation between Circleville's law enforcement units. By pulling together, you fellows are able to do a very efficient job. Keep it up.

Headaches Classified

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
"SPEAKING OF dyspepsia, as we were the other day," said the seer of Rosedale, Dr. Adrian Gibbs, "I always sort of classify headache and dyspepsia together."
"For one thing they both lead to Dr. Clendenning will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.
confused thinking. Doctors are as likely to get mixed up on them as patients. I have known, in my time, four and twenty captains of revolt," said the old cardinal, in Browning's play. Well, I have known four and twenty kinds of headaches in my time—neuralgia, pelvic, bilious, gastric, intestinal absorption, uric acid and some of them are still mentioned but mostly they have gone their way.
"The occasional, or acute, headache is not usually hard to figure out. Any oncoming fever or influenza, or stopped nose, or spell of overwork will bring it on. The hangover headache should be an awful lesson, but too often it isn't. The young occasional drunk has the hangover headache. The old, regular boozier doesn't have a headache—he feels bad all over every morning—and ascribes it to the whole world. That hangover headache is Nature's warning to the young drunk.
Acute Headache
"The acute headache is easy enough to cure. Treat the cause, or go to bed, or take that good old forgotten, reliable—5 grains of acetaminol. But don't take it daily or you'll turn blue, like that ornamental to the circuit bench, who was once a patient of mine.
"The chronic headaches, the everyday headaches—in the sense that the doctors see them every day—have been ascribed to everything on earth. But my observations teach me that they can be reduced to four kinds:
"Eye strain, the people who need glasses, or, if they have glasses, properly fitting glasses. You can spot 'em because they are all right in the morning, but in the evening after using their eyes all day the headaches.
"You can spot the high blood pressure headache, too, because it comes on in middle age.
"The other two kinds are worry headaches and migraine.
"Worry headaches, or nervous headaches, are a good deal like the dyspepsias. I use worry in a broad, generic sense—people for whom the world is too much, the maladjusted, the grouches, and, especially, the idle. Dyspepsics belong to the same class.
"Some people are weak in the stomach and some are weak in the head. When the world doesn't suit 'em that's when they ache.
Psychology for Worry Headaches
"Medicine won't do the worry headache any good—just forms a habit. They need psychology. Diversion is a splendid remedy for them. Sometimes it has to be drastic. I knew a woman who found when her husband died that instead of being rich he left a lot of debts and a shaky business. She had to pitch in and get the business back on its feet, and she did a good job. And it cured her lifelong headaches.
"Migraine, or sick headache, is real enough. It comes on periodically. The victim usually knows ahead of time when one of "my" headaches is coming on. That's one way of spotting it—They own it. I knew a woman who said it is "my" headache. It is called sick headache because there are often stomach symptoms too—lack of appetite, nausea, or vomiting. Sometimes the stomach symptoms show up without the headache. Then they may be called "bilious attacks." They ought to be called abdominal migraine.

CHAPTER THIRTY-SEVEN
TIED FROM the strenuous rehearsal, Mallory had walked into her apartment, yearning for a warm bath and one of Prism's competent massages. The girl was allowing herself an hour for that and a short nap. To find Prism sleeping annoyed her. But instantly she knew she should not be annoyed. She should be frightened. And she was. Terribly.
After having shaken Prism's shoulder, just once, without a response, the singer raced to the telephone and called Richard Blythe. Her first thought of the manager's assistance fled. She realized he was not the one to help her; in fact, she did not even want him to know the circumstances.
"I'll not let one of those evasive maids of Richard's give me the runaround." She need not have worried in such a manner. Blythe himself answered. "Richard," she said in a fast whisper, "Prism was sound asleep when I left this morning for the rehearsal. She's still asleep. Richard, I'm scared. Do you think—"
The man interrupted. "Stop talking. I'll come right away." He was curt, but low-voiced also. "Keep it to yourself."
Mallory heard the rattle click of the receiver in her ear, but did not mind. Just to know that he was hurrying comforted her. It was fortunate that he was in town, that she could call upon him for help. Sandy wouldn't be much good in such a crisis. Tod Patrick? Of course Tod would. But he was sticking to New York, leaving her to attend to everything that went wrong. Conveniently, the blond girl was ignoring the fact that she had told him to leave her alone.
Aware that she was ridiculous to expect him, she went onto the balcony and looked for Richard Blythe. Naturally he was nowhere in sight. But she could not bear to go back into Prism's room. Instead, she telephoned again, to Manuella this time.
"I hope you and Carlos can come for cocktails at six this evening." Into Manuella's brief, but obvious hesitation, Mallory inserted, "The man in the taxi will be here."
If the Mexican girl had thought of refusing, she was enticed by the thought of meeting Richard Blythe. She accepted with readiness. Mallory hung up, thinking happily, "I'll see Carlos in less than two hours." Her mirrored reflection brought the spoken word, "Oh, dear, I'll look awful."
Again she went out on the balcony, still complaining. Why couldn't she have just one normal lucid moment with Carlos? One normal lucid moment that they could make delicious. With her wearing some flattering evening gown, instead of her checked travel suit, with her face "rested and child-like, instead of tired from rehearsal and worried over her maid. Why did she have to be in such a constant dither, fretting over everything from a concert to a murder, and over everybody from aspirin salesmen to a colored man?
She looked into the street again.
This time she was rewarded by the sight of Richard Blythe getting out of a car before the entrance of the Montecito. Mallory was waiting at her own door when she reached it.
"Hi, princess," he greeted, coming inside quickly. "We've got work to do, but quick! Where's the kitchen?"
"This way." No matter how fast Mallory walked, he was right at her heels. In fact, they went through the swinging door together. The small room was uninviting after the early morning meal prepared by Armando. "Perhaps I should get a hotel maid to clean up this place," the girl suggested uncertainly.
"After leave the hotel gang out of this, Armando, if it can be trusted, might do it for you. No one else." Blythe was setting a couple of packages on the white "fitchen table." "I didn't want to talk too much over the telephone. Never know who's listening either here or at my place." He was filling a teakettle with water. "Wish I'd told you to have plenty of boiling water ready. Prism must have lots of strong coffee." He took a can from one package. "Coffee. Coffee from the States. My last of a long-treasured supply." There was a tiny burst of air as the boy rolled past the soldered spot. He twisted quickly, eyeing the teakettle with impatience.
"Watched pot' and so on," quoted the singer. "Richard, I don't want to sound foolish, but that aspirin—I think it was drugged. Was it?"
"It was! Rather the aspirin was not aspirin." His face was disagreeable. "I should think you'd have paid some attention to what you were giving your servant."
"It was dark in her room. Besides," fared Mallory. "I supposed you knew what you were talking about when you suggested I take a box from the Smith apartment. Surely you remember I was on my ways downstairs for aspirin—so it's really your fault!"
Richard Blythe's shoulders actually sagged. "Guess you're right. If only you'd taken a tin from those on the table that I'd already inspected. But, darn it all, you must have taken one from the carton when I wasn't paying any attention to you. Lighting a cigaret probably."
"But," condemned the girl a second time, "you should have been paying attention—the water is boiling." She snapped.
The man lifted the singing kettle from the flame. "I thought that was you singing." Instead of using the drop-pot, he poured a large amount of coffee into a pan, added the water and set it back over the heat to boil. "This coffee must be strong to do its work. Mallory, if I'd dared trust you last night, everything would have been simple. But how in the heck was I to know your opinion if those buzzards? And how in the heck," he repeated, "was I to know that you were going to snatch the very box of some sort of drug. What better place could something like that be hidden than in an innocent Lincoln aspirin tin in an innocent Lincoln aspirin carton?"
Mallory put a cup of Richard Blythe's hand. "What worries me is their catching on. What if they should glance in a carton and notice a tin missing?"
"Oh, no." Blythe poured the coffee into the cup; it had a "ungent, rich fragrance." "I had enough spare tins that I'd bought at the drugstore to replace any I took—bring that smaller package, Mallory. It has the smelling salts. And lead the way to Prism."
The colored woman seemed scarcely to be breathing. Mallory put an affectionate hand across the brow, the only solace she knew. "Clammy, isn't it?" asked Blythe.
"Yes." Astonishment was evident in the girl's voice. "Yes, you're right."
"Poor Prism. There were all varieties of drugs in the loot I confiscated." He was bending over the sleeping Negress. "Prism got a hypnotic. She's had enough to cause a depression of the cardiac nerves. Never mind the smelling salts. They won't do any good now."
"Why?" demanded Mallory hoarsely. "She isn't going to die, is she?"
"No. But I'm going to have to give her a counter drug. A grain of atropine sulphate. With a needle. It will be a direct stimulant to the respiratory center—don't be afraid, Mallory," he said with sternness. "I know what I'm doing. Prism is going to be all right. She has to be all right. She is part of our evidence."
"Then shouldn't we have witnesses?"
"My voice is my witness, Mallory. The 'deputados' take my word. Things will be taken care of in due time. Believe me. They will."
The girl watched slowly as Richard Blythe administered the hypodermic. Then he began giving the colored woman artificial respiration. Tears were sliding down Mallory's pale cheeks, but she did not know it.
"She has retained the drug so long that she is in a coma," said Blythe. "The heart is feeble, the pulse abnormally low—but she is going to be okay," he again stressed.
"Oh, stop saying that!" guiped Mallory, "or I'll think you're lying to me."
The man did not answer. He simply smiled and kept on with his miraculous help. He worked constantly and swiftly, yet minutes passed. To Mallory they seemed hours. She felt as if she were living in a black dream. Saving Prism was no easy matter.
Much later—near the hour set for cocktails in fact—Mallory Baker still had not dressed for her guests. She had on the checked wool suit she had worn all day; her face was sprinkled with the tears that persisted in coming. But she did not care, for now she was being rewarded.
Prism's lids parted to show a faint gleam of white. They widened enough for her to peer over her shoulder and realize the air was being forced into her lungs.
"What's matter?" she asked fuzzily. "Am I drowned?"

Deercreek Garden Club Meets At Williamsport

Southern, Jungle Cultivation Discussed

Deercreek Garden club met Thursday in the Williamsport parish house, a fine talk by Mrs. J. W. Meyer on "Gardens of the South" being the feature of the session. Mrs. Meyer spoke especially of one that she had visited a few years ago, called, "The Jungle Gardens of Avery Island," located in New Iberia, La. She spoke of it as "a glimpse into the garden of Eden." It is considered the most beautiful garden in the South.

Mrs. W. D. Heiskell was hostess at the meeting. Twenty-five members were present and Mrs. Ella Hornbeck of Pinckney street was a guest for the evening.

The meeting was opened by Mrs. John Dunlap, Jr., who presided during the business meeting. Miss Carolyn Bochard, secretary, read her monthly report and Mrs. C. W. Hays reported as treasurer. Reports were made also by Mrs. Charles Smiley, chairman of the courtesy committee; Mrs. D. H. Marcy, scrapbook chairman and historian. In the absence of Mrs. Walter Wright, honor roll tablet chairman, Mrs. J. S. Varney read her report concerning the flag which is to be purchased and erected in the village park. The Williamsport Boy Scouts are joining in this project.

Two short talks, "What to do in your Garden this Month," were presented by Mrs. Jesse Rose and Mrs. Mont Vorhees.

During the social hour, delicious refreshments of cake, nuts, coffee and tea, were served by Mrs. Heiskell. Assisting hostesses for the evening were Mrs. Charles Rose, Mrs. George LeMay, Mrs. Marcy, Mrs. H. D. Ganible, Mrs. Edward C. Rector and Mrs. C. K. Hunsicker.

Plans for the next meeting, March 2, include a covered dish supper for members and families at the parish house at 6:30 p. m. Mrs. Andrew Schwarz will be chairman of the hospitality committee. Leslie Pontius of West Hill street will be guest speaker. His subject will be "Flower Pictures."

Methodist W. S. C. S. The Women's Society for Christian Service of the Methodist church met in regular session in the church parlor Thursday with Mrs. G. H. Adkins presiding. Mrs. C. R. Barnhart conducted the devotional service and Mrs. Charles Fuller presented the program. Mrs. Barnhart used as her topic, "God's Truth Abideth Still."

The opening hymn, "Ariel," sung by the group, was followed by prayer. Other hymns were sung with Miss Estella Grimes as piano accompanist. A prayer read by Mrs. Barnhart closed the devotional period.

Mrs. L. S. Lytle, secretary, and Mrs. Fremont L. Mangan, treasurer, gave their respective reports. Plans for the services and covered dish dinners which will be held in the church basement each Wednesday evening during Lent were discussed. The Rev. Clarence Swearingin gave a timely message to the group and urged all members to come to these Lenten meetings.

A very interesting paper was read by Mrs. Fuller, titled "Black Rocks the Light." This told of the ardent evangelistic work done by a converted native of Congo-Africa among his fellow natives.

The hymn, "Assurance," was sung to close the meeting.

Golden Wedding Anniversary Mr. and Mrs. Edward Gerhardt of Church street, New Holland, will observe their Golden Wedding anniversary Sunday, February 6, at their home. They were married in 1894 by the Rev. J. H. Schneider, pastor of Trinity Lutheran church, at his home in Circleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerhardt have been residents of the New Holland community for many years, having resided on their farm, north of the village, until September 1942, when they sold it and moved to New Holland. Mr. Gerhardt is 78 years old and Mrs. Gerhardt, 72. They have three daughters, Mrs. Wilbur Altemann, north of New Holland; Mrs. Webster R. Russell, Wooster; and Mrs. Alvin R. Williams of Cleveland, who is now living in California while her husband, Captain Williams, is stationed at Camp San Luis Obispo. There are five grandchildren.

U. B. Missionary Society Annual Thankoffering meeting of the Women's Missionary society of the United Brethren church met Thursday in the community house with Miss Gladys Noggle in charge of the devotional service and the short business session. It was announced that the annual study class would be February 24 at the home of Mrs. Myrtle Frisner, East Franklin street. The Branch convention will be in the Washington avenue United Navy crepe and navy taffeta worked lattice fashions for gilet and peplum make this trim frock for sunny weather wear this Spring.

THE American designer who created this spring-time frock is outstanding for her success with navy blue especially... and this is a navy blue model. Made with pencil slimmness, the skirt has plenty of spring and width concealed in its skillful cut, and the blouse top is treated to becoming softness which escapes baggy fullness.

A high gilet under the deep V neckline, a slightly flared, short peplum from belt to hipline, are made of matching navy blue taffeta cords woven lattice fashion. This is a dandy dress for accessories of Spring, either the flowery or the starkly severe varieties.

Jesus Feeds the Multitudes

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL (The International Uniform Lesson for Feb. 6 is Mark 6:30-52, 8:1-10, the Golden Text being John 6:35, "I am the bread of life: he that cometh to Me shall not hunger, and he that believeth on Me shall never thirst.")

JOHN THE BAPTIST, you probably remember, was beheaded by Herod at the request of his stepdaughter, who had pleased him by her dancing. Herodias, her mother, was responsible for this cruel request. The mother was angry with John for his outspoken disapproval of her marriage to Herod, her first husband's brother. When the disciples heard about John's death, they came to Jesus to tell Him about it. Jesus saw that His disciples were tired and overwrought, and He suggested that they find a desert place in which to rest.

They took ship from this place, but crowds of people saw them go and as many knew Him, they ran on foot and came to where Jesus and the disciples disembarked. When Jesus saw these people and how much they needed a leader, he was sorry for them "because they were as sheep not having a shepherd: and He began to teach them many things."

Question of Food As evening came, the disciples came to Jesus and asked if they should send the multitude away, to buy themselves food in the villages, for they had nothing to eat. Jesus said, "Give ye them to eat." The disciples could not see how this could be done. "Shall we go buy two hundred pennyworth of bread, and give them to eat?" they asked, knowing that they had not that much money.

Then Jesus asked how many loaves they had; five, they said, and two fishes. Jesus commanded them to make all the people sit down by companies upon the grass, and He took the loaves and fishes, looked up to heaven, and blessed and brake the loaves and gave them to the disciples, and all that multitude of 5,000 souls was filled and there were 12 baskets left.

After this miracle Jesus directed the disciples to get into a ship to go to the opposite shore, and He sent the people away and departed to a mountain to pray. Coming to the shore some time later, He beheld His disciples rowing hard against a strong wind and worn out with the labor.

"About the fourth watch of the night He cometh unto them, walking upon the sea, and would have passed them." When they saw him they thought He was a spirit, and cried out, but He said to them, "Be of good cheer: it is I, be not afraid."

He then went into the ship and the wind stopped blowing, and they were "sore amazed in themselves beyond measure, and wondered." After seeing the Lord do so many wonderful things, wasn't it peculiar that they wondered so much and didn't rely upon His great power? Mark says "their heart was hardened," and truly it must have been.

Feeds 4,000 In the eighth chapter of Mark we are told of another similar miracle to the feeding of the 5,000. In this case the multitude of people had been with Jesus and His followers in the desert for three days, with nothing to eat. Jesus called His disciples to Him and said, "I have compassion on the multitude, because they have now been with Me three days, and have nothing to eat. And if I send them away fasting to their own houses, they will faint by the way for divers of them have come from far." The disciples answered, "From whence can a man satisfy these men with bread here in the wilderness?" Again Jesus asked them how much bread they had, and this time the answer was seven loaves.

"And He commanded the people to sit down on the ground: and He took the seven loaves, and gave thanks, and brake, and gave to his disciples to set before them; and they did set them before the people."

"And they had a few small fishes: and He blessed, and commanded to set them also before them. So they did eat, and were filled: and they took up of the broken meat that was left seven baskets."

"And they that had eaten were about 4,000; and He sent them away." We are informed that the first baskets used to hold the leftover food were small lunch baskets; those used after the 4,000 were fed were large ones.

Always Jesus had compassion for people because His great heart saw their problems and knew their woes. Should we not try to be real followers of Him in this troubled world where there is so much hatred and cruelty? Surely we, too, should have compassion on the multitudes, not on only those we know and love, but on all the peoples of every race and creed. We have not the power of the Lord, but we can, in our humble way, "go about doing good" by merely being kind, friendly and understanding.

GEHRIG'S NAME STAYS TO TOP OF HONOR LIST

NEW YORK, Feb. 4—With a total of 2,596 votes, the late Lou Gehrig, one of baseball's most brilliant names, continued to lead the popularity contest of the sports War Bond committee today.

Gehrig has been leading the list of sports favorites since the beginning of the poll three weeks ago. Each vote represents a $25 war bond.

Ward Cuff, backfield star of the football Giants, with 1,629 votes and Babe Ruth with 1,242 were still in second and third places respectively.

The most startling upsurge was Mel Ott, Giant pilot, who moved into fourth place within the last forty-eight hours, bringing his total up to 1,174.

The contest, which has sold a total of $383,125 worth of bonds, to date continues to be dominated by baseball players.

Pickaway Five Declared Winner Of Overtime Battle With Atlanta

BULLETIN
John Hardin, Pickaway township school superintendent and coach, said Friday that H. R. Townsend, commissioner of high school athletics for Ohio, told him in a telephone conversation that Pickaway had won the cage game with Atlanta Thursday evening when Doyle Fouch, a substitute, scored his first of two baskets in the second overtime period.

Hardin said that Townsend told him the first overtime period must be of three minutes with the team leading at that time being the winner. In the second overtime, the team scoring the first two points is the victor. Fouch scored two field goals before Atlanta went ahead to win, apparently, 40 to 39.

Townsend told Hardin he would send him a letter declaring his team the winner.

Perry township eagles from Atlanta retained their clean slate in court competition Thursday night by winning a super-thriller 40 to 39 in two overtime periods from a fighting Pickaway township team. The game was played before a full house on the Pickaway court.

Pickaway held a six point lead with less than two minutes to play, but loss of Dunkle and Rhoades via the personal foul route spelled doom, Perry tying it up and then going on to win.

VITAL JOUSTS ON CARDS FOR BIG TEN TEAMS

By International News Service
Northwestern and Purdue, which share a first place tie with Iowa in the Big Ten conference basketball race, faced stiff competition with resumption of the league race on three fronts tonight.

Northwestern journeyed to Madison, where the Wildcats will seek their fifth conference victory over the Wisconsin Badgers, while Purdue invaded Columbus for a two-game series against strong Ohio State tonight and tomorrow night.

Tomorrow night will bring the Wildcats to the Chicago stadium, where they will face hapless Minnesota, which will be seeking its first victory in six games. Notre Dame and De Paul will clash on the same bill.

The third conference tilt tonight will see Indiana's Hoosiers and Michigan thirsting for victory in a game at Ann Arbor, and the same quintets play again tomorrow night. Michigan has won one out of eight games, while Indiana has been without a victory in five contests.

In a fourth conference game tomorrow night, Chicago will be the guest of Iowa at Iowa City, where the Hawkeyes seemed assured a seventh straight win.

BOBBY MERRITT'S CASE DECISION IS AWAITED

NEW YORK, Feb. 4—Jockey Bobby Merritt's attempt to wrest a riding license from the New York state racing commission and the Jockey Club had finished its second round today, but the decision will not be known for two weeks.

After the racing bodies were blocked in their attempt to have Merritt's case set aside in a lower court, the commission and Jockey Club appeared in the appellate division of the state supreme court yesterday, to further uphold their ban on the jockey.

Attorneys for the racing commission, Jockey Club and jockey were heard separately by five judges of that court.

The court case stemmed from the refusal by the racing bodies to issue Merritt a 1943 riding license. The racing organizations based their action on the report that Merritt had ridden dishonestly at Empire City race track in 1942.

DARBY, SCIOTO TEAMS TO OPEN COURT TOURNEY

First Game Will Be On At 7 P. M. Friday, February 18

SEEDING IS APPROVED

Ashville, Atlanta Cannot Meet Before Final Day's Card

Darby and Scioto township cage teams will take the lid off the annual Pickaway county tournament Friday, February 18, at 7 p. m.

Drawing were made Thursday at the meeting of county superintendents.

After much debate it was decided to seed outstanding teams, Ashville and Atlanta being put in different brackets to prevent their meeting prior to the finals. No. 3 seeded spot went to Pickaway township, and in a draw for the fourth seeded position, Walnut township was the winner.

The tournament will be staged in four sessions, February 18, 19, 25 and 26.

John Hardin, Pickaway superintendent, is manager of the tournament. He has employed Art Buchanan and Dale Rose of Columbus as officials.

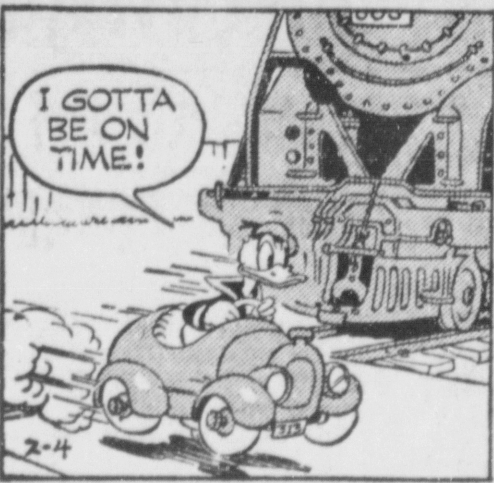

Other first night games in the tournament will include: Williamsport vs. Monroe at 8 p. m.; Jackson vs. Washington at 9 p. m. and Salt Creek vs. New Holland at 10 p. m.

On the second night, the seeded teams will swing into action, Atlanta meeting the winner of the Darby-Scioto tilt at 7 o'clock; Walnut meeting the Monroe-Williamsport winner at 8 o'clock; Pickaway tangling with the Jackson-Washington survivor at 9, and Ashville engaging the Salt Creek-New Holland winner at 10 o'clock.

Semi-finals will be played Friday night, February 25, and the finals and consolation contest Saturday night, February 26.

Pickaway county will again send three teams to the district tournament.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

THEN SHOOT THE WORKS
WHEN YOU can't see any way to make your contract except by finding several suits divided in unlikely ways in the hands of your opponents, the only thing for the plucky declarer to do is "shoot the works." Go after exactly the break you need if you don't get it, at least you have the satisfaction of having tried. And if it does work out as you hoped--oh, boy! isn't that a grand and glorious feeling?

You have shared laughs with us at "Saro" cartoons, but have you ever seen the artistry of their creator, Don Komisarow, exemplified at the bridge table? It was really pretty to see him do his stuff and make his contract with that doubtful trump suit. After West led the diamond K and switched to the club 8, he could find only one hopeful way to bring in the bacon. That necessitated getting an even break of the outstanding cards in two suits, spades and diamonds. None dismayed, he went for it. Taking the second trick with the club A, he began work to set up three diamonds, ruffing the 4 with the spade 5. To the dummy he went with the spade 7 to the J and ruffed the diamond 6 with the spade Q. The desired three diamonds were now established, so he was ready to try to dispose of the remaining four hostile spades. The K removed two of them. To dummy he went then with the club Q to the K and played the spade A. When both defenders had to follow suit, he knew he was safely home. On that trick he put one heart, and the three diamonds accounted for the others. He finished the hand by leading the club 3 to the J and 10.

How would you try for 6-NT? Trumps on this deal after West leads the diamond 5?

AUDITIONS OF AIR

Jean Gibbons, young lyric soprano of Washington, D. C., and Morton Bowe, popular tenor of Boston, Mass., will enter the lists of contestants for a Met contract as featured vocalists on the "Metropolitan Opera Auditions of the Air," Sunday at 3:30 p. m. Miss Gibbons' solo will be "Che volo d'augelli" from Leoncavallo's "I Pagliacci," and Bowe's "Ah! leve toi, solet" from Gounod's "Romeo et Juliet." Their duets will be "Va, Je t'ai pardonne" from Act IV of "Romeo et Juliet," and "None Shall Part Us" from Gilbert and Sullivan's "Iolanthe."

RADIO NEWS NOTES

Charlene Harris, heard as Lois Carroll in "The Adventures of Perry Mason" on CBS, has just completed a three-act play, "Murder on Tour," and reports that it is under consideration by a prominent producer. As an actress, she is quite versatile. She is able to do eight different dialects and can disguise her voice to do any one of 17 assorted characterizations.

MR. DISTRICT ATTORNEY

"Mr. District Attorney" pulls no punches against racketeers, who prey for profit on the loved ones of the dead, in "The Case of the Graveyard Swindle" on Wednesday at 8:30 p. m., over WLW. Jay Jostyn, Vicki Vola and Len Doyle play the starring roles. Peter Van Steeden composes and conducts the music.

"LIFE OF RILEY"

An irresistible force (the Rileys) meets a set of apparently immovable objects (the furniture), when moving day dawns in William Bendix's comedy series, "The Life of Riley," on Sunday at 2 p. m., over NBC. The Rileys can get into the house they've rented only when the previous tenants move out... and the previous tenants are waiting for someone else to move out of their new home. Participating in the problems are Riley (Bendix), his wife (Paula Winslowe), Junior (Conrad Binyon) and the inevitable Uncle Baxter (Hans Conried).

"TAKE IT OR LEAVE IT"

THE WAVES, sailors and Marines (female), who are in training at Hunter College, will be able to take their minds off their studies for a while and make some money, too--when Phil Baker brings his "Take It Or Leave It" show to the campus on Sunday, February 13, at 9 p. m., over WBNS.

SELECTIONS BY BACH, BEETHOVEN AND BRAHMS

Selections by Bach, Beethoven and Brahms will predominate when Dr. Frank Black is guest conductor with the Cleveland Symphony Orchestra over MBS Sunday, February 6.

CAMPAIGN DATES SET

Rural Districts Arrange For February And March Collection Period

An intensified effort to salvage waste paper in the Pickaway county district is being organized by local and state salvage officials with the first step in the expanded campaign to be taken the last two days in February and the first few days in March in all schools of the Pickaway county rural school system.

Arrangements for the drive were made Thursday afternoon when Dan McClain, Pickaway county salvage chairman; John Dexter, of the state salvage division, and Lee Maxwell, recently assigned to the scrap paper division, met with Pickaway county school superintendents in the office of Superintendent George D. McDowell.

The salvage officials outlined the need for scrap paper, and received a wholehearted pledge from the educators that assistance would be provided.

Schedule Arranged

Mr. Maxwell will set up a schedule, working with the county school office, for a visit to each school in the county so that the need for scrap paper can be stressed.

The educators were told Thursday that scrap paper is now the nation's No. 1 critical waste material, and that collections must be boosted from 500,000 to at least 667,000 tons a month. Shut down of many paper mills might follow with a resulting shortage of paper products that would seriously retard the war effort, the superintendents were informed.

"It would appear impossible to overstate the nation's need for waste paper," Mr. Maxwell told the school heads. "In the face of steadily mounting usage of paper products in the war effort, due to its status as a practical substitute for steel and other critical materials, the paper industry faces a shortage of virgin pulp, caused by lack of manpower and transportation facilities. The only answer is more and more waste paper."

Needed for Victory

Paper is used to produce bomb bands, powder kegs, ammunition chests, fuel tank linings, ration kits and cartons of all descriptions for the shipping of materials overseas.

Householders are urged to assist in the campaign by properly bundling newspapers, magazines and cartons which they wish collectors to pick up.

According to the plan outlined to the superintendents, Circleville will not participate in the February-March campaign. The county seat conducted a drive a little over a week ago in which a large supply of waste paper was salvaged.

Need for more salvaged paper is being stressed by the Container Corporation of America plant here which cannot operate unless waste paper continues to pour into the factory.

Mr. McClain reminded Circleville housewives Friday that a tin can salvage program will be conducted next Wednesday in Circleville with the service department joining in the drive. All tin cans

More County Men Leave For Pre-Induction Test Of Physical Fitness

A pre-induction contingent of Pickaway county selective service registrants went to Columbus Friday for physical examinations which will determine whether they should be put on draft lists as available for calls into service.

All the men will return home as civilians, including those informed by army medical team members that they are physically fit for service. They will be subject to call in 21 days, notices for reporting to be sent from the local draft office.

This contingent is the second one sent away for pre-induction tests, the other, a much smaller one, going to Huntington, W. Va. Men found acceptable in this group have not yet received their notices to report for assignment and classification at an army station.

Included in Friday's contingent were:

ONE MINUTE PULPIT
The Lord is gracious, and full of compassion; slow to anger, and of great mercy.—Psalms 144:8.

Funeral services were held Monday in Waynesfield, O., for Mrs. E. Benjamin Yale, 59, step-mother of Carl Yale, formerly of Circleville. Mrs. Yale died Saturday in Lima hospital. Carl Yale is in the air corps serving in the South.

H. M. Waites has given up his job as janitor at the Heffner Grain Co. offices after seven years. Mr. Waites resigned because of ill health.

The Eagles Lodge is sponsoring a games party at the home on East Main street, Friday night, starting at 8:30. Everyone invited.

Miss Helen Betts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred C. Betts of Williamsport, has been made supervisor of the personnel department of the U. S. Employment office in Cleveland. Miss Betts has been working in the Cleveland office for more than a year.

Ray W. Davis, Montclair avenue, will discuss the life of Lincoln at the Kiwanis club Monday at 6:30 p. m. The club meets at Hanley's.

There will be a 50-50 dance, Saturday night from 9 to 12 at the Eagles Home. It is open to the public.

Rotary club members enjoyed color movies of pre-war fishing in Minnesota Thursday when R. L. Brehmer, North Court street, conducted the program at Pickaway Arms. The movies proved entertaining to the club members.

Dr. B. R. Bales is slowly recovering at his home on West Main street after a severe attack of influenza.

Mrs. John Bolender of Beverly road underwent a major operation Thursday in St. Anthony hospital, Taylor avenue, Columbus. Mrs. Bolender is in Room 114.

Mrs. Thomas Wright of Jackson township is in Cincinnati where her two daughter, Sara Jane and Suzanne, are patients in Children's hospital for observation and treatment. Mrs. B. H. Rader of Pickaway township, Mrs. Wright's mother, is showing improvement at her home after a serious illness.

must be properly cleaned and crushed.

The salvage chief said also that waste paper will be accepted by service department truck operators if the paper, magazines and cartons are properly bundled and tied.

Importance of the tin can and paper salvage programs have been stressed at various times by industry and by salvage officials.

ARMY TO TAKE CUSTODY OF GUN-TOTING CORPORAL

Fort Hayes army post military police are expected to come to Circleville Friday to remove Corporal Raymond Azbell, 21, of Lancaster and Fort Bliss, Texas, to the military reservation.

Azbell has been held in city jail since 1:30 a. m. Thursday after he pulled a .32 caliber revolver on Emmanuel Hundley, York street, in a West Main street establishment. Azbell was irked, police said, when Hundley danced with a girl friend.

The soldier ran when police were called and tossed his pistol on a shed roof where it was found Thursday morning.

Azbell, who is in an anti-aircraft outfit at Fort Bliss, was home on an emergency pass, but was due back at Fort Bliss Wednesday the day before he was arrested in Circleville.

STATE AIDES LEAVING

Saturday is the last day for Circleville and Pickaway county income taxpayers to receive assistance from state Bureau of Internal Revenue officials who have been at the postoffice all this week. The two state men assigned here have been kept busy since their arrival.

SCHOOL CHILDREN BUY $1,049 IN WAR STAMPS

Circleville school children are continuing to do a fine job for Uncle Sam. Wednesday is stamp and bond day each week in the school system, and youngsters in the various buildings bought a total of $1,049.20 in bonds and stamps this week.

The purchases help to send the Fourth War Loan campaign toward its goal of $1,244,000. During the month of January the city's school children bought $3,062.90 worth of stamps and bonds.

The burbot—a fresh water cod—is an excellent source of medicinal oils, for its liver is very oily and yields a product richer in vitamin A than the well-known cod liver oil.
